NEWSPAPERS IN PARLIAMENT

A New Ruling

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, April 18. Sir Dennis Herbert gave a ruling which may establish a precedent. He was asked by Lord Winterbottom whether it was in order for M.P.s to read newspapers during a debate.

He ruled that to read newspapers would not be regarded as out of order if the debate in progress was about something the newspaper in question had printed.

Books, newspapers and letters may not be read by M.P.s in the House. That is a very old rule. It has been changed in the past to allow members to refer to books or letters when they are preparing to speak; but the ban on newspapers has remained.

Overruled. At one time it was strictly out of order for an M.P. to read an extract from a newspaper in the course of a speech. It is now quite a common practice.

The right to do so was won in 1840. A member was called to order by the Speaker for reading an extract from a newspaper.

Sir Robert Peel, maintaining that the matter was relevant to the debate, protested against the ruling, and the majority of the House agreed that the speech should go on.

Subsequent Speakers have held this as a precedent, when the question has been raised.

ALL-COLOUR FILM

First Of Its Kind To Be Made In Bombay

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, April 18. A beautiful dancing girl, a young prince, and an Afghan chieftain will be the main characters in a film to be made in Bombay which, it is claimed, will make screen history.

It will be the first all-colour animal picture ever produced, stated Capt. N. E. Franklin in an interview on his arrival in Bombay to make preliminary arrangements. He is the advance guard of the British company which will produce the film.

All the parts will be played by Indians. Scenes will be shot in various parts of the country, and it is hoped to get some spectacular effects in some of the Indian States.

A PACIFIC AIR SERVICE

California To China

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, April 18. The British line to Australia is now the longest air route in regular operation. But in the boldness, the audacity even, of its conception the new service across the Pacific, started experimentally by Pan-American Airways, must rival any air service in the world.

California and China are separated by 8,500 miles of open sea, sprinkled at immense intervals with islands which, except for Honolulu and the Philippines at each end of the chain, are little more than earth-dust. Honolulu is 2,400 miles from the American coast. This is the longest single stage, though still Manila, no stage falls below 1,200 miles. And the islands at the end of "each stage are delicate coral atolls on which it would be a cruise to support life. Midway Island is about a thousand acres across; Wake Island is scarcely more than a reef (enclosing a lagoon), across which the Pacific sweeps continuously.

Not Deterred. American enthusiasm, however, has not been deterred by the difficulties of equipping these unattractive spots with the facilities needed by a new and complicated science. Parties of engineers and stores have been landed, the stores including vegetable seeds, which the engineers can occupy their spare time in planting—that is, if they can scrape sufficient earth together for the purpose. Also, since an aeroplane's tank of navigation in making a "landfall" at these tiny atolls at the end of a 1,200-mile flight will be acute, directional wireless stations have been set up.

Japanese Disapproval. No one supposes that such a Pacific service can possibly pay for itself; the weight of petrol required to carry a tiny commercial payload over these distances will be immense. But since a start has to be made in flying a major ocean some time, the American experience now to be acquired should be valuable. Meanwhile, since the route passes through the middle of the zone of the Japanese "mandated" islands and could presumably be used in war as well as in peace, it is understandable that the Japanese naval "spokesman" should have expressed his grave disapproval.

Social.—Whist Drive, R.E.W.O.s. and S.N.C.O.s. Mess, 9 p.m.

HITLER'S HUGE ARMS CLAIMSDisclosed In Commons

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, April 18.
An army of 550,000 men.
A navy equal to 35 per cent. of British naval tonnage.

Air parity between Germany, Britain, and France.
These sweeping demands by Herr Hitler in the Berlin conversations were disclosed in the House of Commons by Sir John Simon.

The Foreign Secretary stated that Hitler rejects an Eastern pact and proposes non-aggression pacts.

He declared further that Hitler had made a claim for Germany to possess all types of arms possessed by other countries, adding that Germany would not cease construction so long as other countries possessed the arms they did now.

Sir John reported also on the information obtained by Mr. Anthony Eden, Lord Privy Seal, in his Moscow and Warsaw talks.

Sir John, remarking that the talks were for the purpose of providing material as to the views of other Governments, and were connected with the meeting at Stresa between the British, French, and Italian Governments, which begins to-morrow, said he could only make a summarised statement of what was ascertained, and it would not be possible to use the present occasion for a pronouncement of Government policy.

As regards the so-called Eastern Pact, which was first suggested by the late M. Barthou last summer and which was the subject of debate in the House of Commons on July 13, Herr Hitler made it plain that Germany was not prepared to sign an Eastern pact under which Germany would be bound to mutual assistance.

In particular Germany was not prepared to enter into a pact of mutual assistance between herself and Russia.

NON-AGGRESSION FAVOURED
On the other hand, Germany was stated to be in favour of a non-aggression pact between Powers interested in Eastern European questions, together with provisions for consultation if aggression were threatened.

Herr Hitler was not prepared under present conditions to contemplate the inclusion of Lithuania in any pact of non-aggression.

The Germans also suggested that if, in spite of this pact of non-aggression and consultation, hostilities should break out between any two contracting Powers the other contracting Powers should engage not to support the aggressor in any way.

Asked as to his view if some of the other parties to such a pact entered into an agreement of mutual assistance among themselves, Herr Hitler stated that he considered this idea was dangerous and objectionable, as in his opinion it would tend to create special interest in a group within the wider system.

THE VIEW OF MOSCOW
In Moscow the Lord Privy Seal learned that the Soviet Government considered that the present international situation made it more than ever necessary to pursue and endeavour to promote the building up of a security system in Europe, as contemplated in the London communiqué and in conformity with the principles of the League.

The Soviet Government emphasised that in its view the proposed Eastern Pact did not aim at the isolation or encirclement of any State, but at the creation of equal security for all participants, and they felt that the participation of both Germany and Poland would afford the best solution of the problem.

In Warsaw the Polish Foreign Minister explained that Poland had, by her existing agreement with the Soviet Union on the one hand and Germany on the other, established tranquil conditions upon her frontiers, and the question Poland was bound to ask herself was whether any new proposal would improve or trouble the good understanding established by these two agreements.

CENTRAL EUROPE PACT
As regards the idea of the Central European Pact, it was more a topic of the Franco-Italian Treaty at Rome. He understood in Berlin that the German Government did not reject the idea of such an agreement on grounds of principle, but did not see its necessity and saw very great difficulty in defining non-interference in relation to Austria.

Herr Hitler intimated, however, that if the other Governments which would wish to conclude a Central European Pact could agree upon the text the German Government would consider it.

In Warsaw M. Beck told the Lord Privy Seal that Poland was prepared to adopt a friendly attitude to a Central European Pact, and considered that the proposed arrangement might lead to appeasement and to a growth of confidence in that region.

M. Benes, at Prague, expressed the hope that further progress might be made on this subject at Stresa.

ASSASSINATION PLOT UNCOVERED

Japanese Statesmen Marked

Tokyo, April 30.

Twelve youths, all still in their teens, were arrested by the police last December on a charge of plotting against the lives of three veteran statesmen, it was revealed to-day following the lifting of a judicial press ban.

The young men, who were mostly day labourers, banded themselves into a "Young Blood Brotherhood," styled after a super-patriotic organization of similar name whose members assassinated Mr. Inoue, Minister of Finance, and Baron Takuma Dan, managing director of the Mitsui commercial interests, in 1932.

The new group, police allege, planned to murder Prince Kimmochi Saito, the "Elder Statesman," Count Shinken Makino, Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, and Dr. K. Suzuki, president of the Seikukai majority party in the Lower House of the Imperial Diet.

All those arrested have been committed for trial.

STAPLES SURPRISES

GOOD THINGS FOR YOUR SUMMER TABLE

Warm, not to mention hot, weather means that you are on the look-out for tempting, cooling dishes that can be prepared in the minimum of time. Naturally you want to exercise just as much care in planning your menus as you do in colder weather—but you wish to take advantage of the many summer fruits and vegetables and to reduce the hours you spend in the kitchen. Here are suggestions for foods, ranging all the way from a delectable summer soup to an enjoyable, but not too rich dessert.

FRUIT SOUP

1 cup cherry juice
1 cup pineapple juice
1 cup orange juice
2 tbs. lemon juice
2 tbs. sugar
1/4 tsp. salt
2 tbs. gelatine
1 cup cold water
1 1/2 cups boiling water
Soak gelatine in cold water and dissolve in boiling water. Add fruit juices, sugar and salt and chill in refrigerator. Before serving beat with a fork, then turn into tall thin glasses or bouillon cups.

VEGETABLE LOAF

This is very easy to make and is appetizing and nourishing. Three cups stale bread crumbs, 2 cups (about) milk, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 eggs, 1 cup finely chopped celery, 1 cup chopped carrot, 1 cup finely chopped nut meats, 1 onion, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon pepper, 4 tablespoons sifted tomato pulp, 1 tablespoon capers (optional but good).

Let crumbs become dry after measuring. Put into a large mixing bowl and pour over milk which has been sealed. Use as much milk as the crumbs will absorb and add butter while the mixture is hot. Stir until butter is melted and add eggs well beaten and remaining ingredients. Turn into a well oiled loaf pan and bake in a slow oven until firm. It will take about an hour. Unmold on a hot platter and serve with a tomato sauce mixed with grated cheese.

SERVE CHEESE ROULETTES AT BUFFET SUPPER

Young girls who want to entertain a few of their friends should look over buffet recipes. In the first place, more people can be entertained less expensively at a supper where everyone help himself and, secondly, guests have more fun when food decorations are arranged informally.

The perfect buffet supper menu should include one substantial hot dish, an enormous bowl of salad, various relishes, a cold roast fowl or a baked ham, iced drinks and hot rolls or bread that come in the de luxe category. Let each guest help himself.

Scrambled eggs, crisp bacon, fancy bread or rolls, coffee and a simple dessert, make an appropriate menu for a Sunday night supper. If you want something a bit different in the way of hot bread, try cheese roulettes. They're easy to make; simple to keep hot and have a festive air about them that greatly adds to a supper. The following recipe makes 24:

Sift two cups of cake flour, and 2 teaspoons of baking powder and one half teaspoon of salt. Sift again. Cut four tablespoons of butter or other shortening into the dry ingredients, add two-thirds cup of milk and stir carefully. When all of the mixture is dampened, stir vigorously until it forms a soft dough and follows the spoon around the bowl. Turn out immediately on a slightly floured board and knead thirty seconds. Roll into oblong

CORN CHOWDER

1 pint milk
1 pint boiling water
1 quart potatoes, diced
2 tbs. salt pork, Pepper dried
2 cups corn cut from cob (cooked)
1 tbs. on Salt Pepper
Cut the pork into small pieces and chop the onion. Boil the diced potatoes in the pint of boiling water for 15 minutes. Fry the salt pork and onion for 2 minutes and add these and the corn to the potatoes. Cook until the potatoes are done. Add the milk, season to taste with salt and pepper and bring the mixture to the boiling point. Serve very hot.

MARVEL PIE

Marvel Lemon Pie
1 package lemon gelatin
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
Grated rind of two lemons.
1 1/2 cups boiling water
2 egg yolks
Juice of two lemons
1 baked nine-inch pie shell
Combine gelatin, sugar, salt and lemon rind with 3 tablespoons water. Add egg yolks and stir well. Add remaining water, stirring until gelatin is dissolved. Cool. Add lemon juice. Chill. When slightly thickened, turn into cold pie shell. Chill until firm. Cover with three-minute meringue, or top with whipped cream if desired.

Three-Minute Meringue.
Put 2 unbeaten egg whites, 1 cup sugar, dash of salt, and 2 tablespoons water in upper part of double boiler thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water and beat 1 minute; then remove from fire, and continue beating 2 minutes longer, or until mixture will stand in peaks. Add few drops of vanilla or almond extract. Beat well.

Cheese Treats Add Variety To Ordinary Meals

Cheese Pancakes
7 ounces cheese
4 pound flour
1 pint milk or cream
4 eggs
Salt and pepper
Beat the eggs with cream or milk and flour, add the cheese and seasoning. Melt a nut of butter in a frying pan, and pour the batter into the pan, cooking on both sides.

TASTY MAIN COURSES

Summer Additions To The Menu

For those who prefer poultry to game, there are always ducks and geese to be had. A "Salmi of duck" is an excellent dish; for this roast the bird with a little diced bacon for twenty minutes, and then cut it into joints. Make a thick gravy in the roasting-pan, strain this into a saucepan, season well, add the pieces of duck with some sliced shallot and a bunch of herbs, and simmer till the flesh is tender. Arrange the duck on a large slice of fried bread, strain the gravy round after removing the fat and adding a squeeze of lemon juice, and serve garnished with fried bacon rolls.

To come to vegetables, runner beans and vegetable marrow are real summer products. A lettuce make a delicious luncheon or supper dish. Have ready a pint of sliced, cooked, and drained runner beans, and melt an ounce of butter in a clean saucepan. Add the beans to the butter, sprinkle in a teaspoonful of flour, cook for a few minutes, and then stir in about a quarter of a teacupful of milk. Simmer for five minutes, add an egg yolk beaten up with half a teacupful each of cold water and lemon juice, and cook while stirring, but do not boil. Season to taste, and serve surrounded with small triangular-shaped pieces of fried bread.

As regards fruit, ripe plums in plenty are procurable already. This luscious fruit is equally good raw and cooked, and there are few things more delightful than a plum paste. Have the top and bottom crusts both very thin, fill with heaps of plums, plenty of Demerara sugar, and a few small dabs of butter, and bake till just cooked through. Sprinkle with fine white sugar, and serve hot or cold on the plate on which the paste is cooked.

Stuffed Eggs
6 ounces cheese
1 ounce butter
Salt and pepper
6 hard boiled eggs
1 pint cream
Cut the eggs into halves lengthwise, and remove the yolks. Pass the yolks through a sieve and add the butter, cream, and cheese. Arrange the whites of the eggs in a baking dish, fill in the centers with the prepared mixture, sprinkle with grated cheese, place a nut of butter on the top and brown.

Cheese Souffle
1 pound cheese
1 ounce flour
1 pint cream
1 pint milk
5 eggs
Salt
Mix the yolks of the eggs, the flour, cream and milk. Cook, stirring all the time, then add the cheese and salt, and finally the 5 whites of eggs and bake till it rises to twice its original size.

Cheese and Potato Cakes
1 ounce flour
7 ounces cheese
Salt and pepper
10 potatoes
3 eggs
Cook the potatoes in salted water, after which pass them through a sieve; add the eggs, flour and cheese, and season. Allow to cool, mold into cakes, and fry in butter.

RHUBARB

A peculiar thing about Rhubarb is that it takes all flavours but gives none. If therefore you have a small quantity of choice fruit to make into jelly, you can make twice the quantity of boiling rhubarb with it, and no one will be aware of what you have done when once it is strained. Flavour simple rhubarb juice with almond and lemon and it will make a perfect "apple jelly".

Rhubarb jelly alone can be made by covering the rhubarb in a pan with cold water and simmering until all the juice is extracted. Strain and allow 1 lb. sugar to every breakfastcupful of juice. Allow it to boil ten or twelve minutes or until it appears to be thickening then pour into small jars.

brandy cherries at the bottom of the cup, which is then filled up with vanilla ice.

CHICKEN MOLD

1 package lemon flavoured gelatin
2 cups boiling water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped pimientos
1 cup chopped green peppers
1 1/2 cups diced cooked chicken
Pour water over gelatin mixture and stir until it has dissolved, add lemon juice and salt. Cool. Pour 1 inch layer into shallow mold. When "set," add olives, pimientos and pepper. Add gelatin to cover and let "set." Add rest of ingredients to remaining gelatin and pour into mold. Chill until stiff. Unmold on lettuce and serve cut in slices.

ANCHOVY EGGS

12 hard cooked eggs
4 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons finely chopped pickles.

Cut eggs in halves, remove and mash yolks. Carefully preserve egg white cases. Mix mayonnaise, seasonings and pickles with yolks. Refill egg white cases. Chill. When ready to serve place anchovies on top stuffed eggs and sprinkle with little finely chopped parsley. Use as garnish for chicken mold.

JELLIED VEGETABLE SALAD

3 tbs. gelatine
1 cup cold water
1 quart canned tomatoes
2 or 3 onion slices
1 1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. sugar
1 tbs. chopped green pepper
2 tbs. chopped celery
1 tbs. chopped parsley
1 cup shredded cabbage
Soak the gelatine in cold water 5 minutes. Boil the tomatoes and onion for 5 minutes, strain through a fine sieve. Pour the hot tomato juice over the softened gelatine and stir until dissolved. Add the salt and sugar and chill. When the gelatine mixture is slightly soft, add the finely chopped vegetables and mix well. Add more salt if needed. If the mixture is not tart enough add a little lemon juice or vinegar. Pour into wet custard cups and place in refrigerator when ready to serve turn out on crisp lettuce and serve with mayonnaise.

Mousses

Mousses, unlike ice creams, need no agitating during the freezing process. By proper manipulation before pouring into the freezing trays, they will maintain that light consistency which makes them an attractive addition to the refrigerator dessert group. Since no agitating is required during the freezing process, a mousse can be prepared, placed in the refrigerator and allowed to freeze overnight.

Plain mousse makes a delightful addition to any icebox cake or fruit combination. Fresh fruit or canned dessert may be served with plain Mousse in many attractive ways. It is rich dessert and small portions should be served.

Plain Mousse

1 cup whipping cream
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg white
Whip cream. Add sugar and vanilla. Fold in stiffly-beaten egg white. Pour into tray and allow to freeze without agitating. This dessert may be served with chilled crushed fruit. It may also be used for decorating refrigerator strawberry shortcake or various icebox cakes.

Banana Mousse

2 cups whipping cream
1 cup bananas, sliced thin
1 cup sugar
2 egg whites
Pinch of salt
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
Whip cream, add vanilla and sugar. Place in refrigerator to chill while bananas are being prepared. Slice bananas very thin with silver knife. A silver knife will guard against the bananas turning dark so readily. Add bananas to cream and pour into tray or individual cups for freezing.

'ASPRO'

THOUSANDS have testified to the efficacy of 'ASPRO' and thousands more have proved by use that 'ASPRO' definitely soothes away the excruciating pains of Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Headaches, etc. It quickly stops the pain. There is no waiting or delay; furthermore, 'ASPRO' is safe, and it does not harm the heart, digestion, or stomach. It can be taken by anyone, anywhere, at any time, and the reason why 'ASPRO' has such a large number of uses in every home is because, after ingestion in the system, it is an internal antiseptic—an anti-pyretic or fever reducer—an anti-periodic—a powerful germicide, and a definite solvent. Let your slogan be:—GET 'ASPRO' AND GET RID OF PAIN.

Wonderful for Lumbago and Rheumatism

Dear Sirs,
15 Bay Road,
Kewview, S. Aust.
My father has suffered for a number of years with LUMBAGO and RHEUMATISM in a severe state, being in bed 3 or 4 weeks at a time each year. Some time ago he tried 'ASPRO' Tablets for relief, and they acted wonderfully. During the last 11 years he has taken very many Tablets, but he enjoys better health and does not get a return of severe pains nor any ill effects from taking your 'ASPRO' Tablets daily and would recommend anyone suffering from LUMBAGO or RHEUMATISM to try 'ASPRO' Tablets at they give such splendid relief. Yours sincerely,
SF/M (Gina) L. WOLSEY.

12 Months' Sciatica Stopped in a Fortnight with 'ASPRO'

27 Marine Pk.,
ST. KILDA,
June 28, 1932.
Dear Sirs,
For nearly 12 months I have been suffering with Sciatica, and could hardly walk with the pains in both legs. I was recommended to take 'ASPRO', which I did, night and morning, with the result that in a fortnight the pain had practically left me, and I was able to walk about in perfect ease. Yours faithfully,

CINEMA TRADE NOTICES

NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS

There is nothing about Alan Mowbray that suggests villainy. As a matter of fact, his sense of humour is renowned throughout Hollywood, where he runs wild. It remained for that master of comedy, Lowell Sherman, to discover Mowbray's comedy talent. It was Sherman who selected Mowbray for the leading male role in his "Night Life of the Gods." Thorne Smith's uproarious lusty comedy now playing at the King's Theatre.

In the three years he has been in Hollywood, Mowbray has appeared in more than 45 pictures, which is a record few can equal. Last year he worked 42 weeks out of 52, and the year before he worked 38 weeks.

Mowbray was born an Englishman, but travelled far and wide over the world. He came to America about 13 years ago, landing in New York with a few shillings in his pockets. When this was gone, he slept in Central Park on benches a number of nights. Finally he obtained work as a newspaper correspondent for an English paper. He tried to get work as an actor, but couldn't convince the hardhearted managers of his ability, despite his record on the English stage.

MARIE GALANTE

Reminiscent of the costly and complicated research work which took place for fully a year before "Cavalade" went into production, was the minute attention to every detail which marked preparation of "Marie Galante," the Fox Film production arriving at the King's Theatre next Sunday.

The signing of Ketti Gallian as its star along is worthy of comment. For an entire year Winfield Sheehan, who personally supervised the production, searched the world for a young actress with the necessary qualities to play "Marie Galante." When the Fox Film executive saw Miss Gallian's brilliant performance in "The Ace" on the London stage last year he realized his search had ended. Ketti, an idol of French theatre audiences, has to perfection, it is said, the looks, the temperament, and the ability required for the exacting role.

The next move was to cast Spencer Tracy one of the most virile actors in pictures to-day, as the American hero, opposite Miss Gallian.

Each member of the strong supporting cast has been chosen with infinite care and after numerous tests.

A notable supporting cast includes Ned Sparks, Helen Morgan, Leslie Fenton, Arthur Byron, and Robert Loraine.

OUTCAST LADY

"Outcast Lady" showing at the Oriental Theatre on Friday and Saturday presents a great pair of lovers in one of the strongest emotional dramas ever written for stage or screen.

Constance Bennett and Herbert Marshall make an unforgettable pair in Zoe Akins' picture version of Michael Arlen's story. The picture deals with the love of Iris and Napier, interrupted by the opposition of Napier's father. Iris marries a boyhood friend of them both, but the husband commits suicide

CHARLIE CHAN IN PARIS

In the six Charlie Chan roles which Warner Oland has enacted prior to his current vehicle, "Charlie Chan in Paris" now at the Queen's Theatre, he has had a variety of leading ladies. Marguerite Churchill, Sally Eilers, Marion Nixon, Heather Ange and Drue Leyton have appeared with him in these previous films. Drue Leyton in two. In the new film, Mary Brian is his leading lady.

In this, the seventh of the famed Charlie Chan series Fox has turned out an ingenious and thrill-packed picture. Moving swiftly from episode to episode, "Charlie Chan in Paris" builds to an astonishing climax which even the most hardened mystery fans will have failed to foresee. For sheer suspense and ingenuity, the newest of the Charlie Chan screen stories tops all its predecessors; and Oland once more registers heavily in his most celebrated role. There is no part which suits this remarkable actor so well as does that of Charlie Chan. Wily, subtle, yet kindly and enormously human, the characterization belongs among the notable screen portraits of all time.

BEHOLD MY WIFE

A stirring, well-made story of modern people, with an unusual plot slant, Paramount's "Behold My Wife" opening to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre has Sylvia Sydney starred with Gene Raymond, blond Adonis of the screen.

Even to those of you who have become accustomed to seeing the beautiful Miss Sydney in a variety of exciting and difficult character roles, it will be a surprise to see her straight forward and thoroughly convincing rendition of the role of an Indian girl in "Behold My Wife."

Directed by Mitchell Leisen, the picture draws its story from the hypothesis that a wealthy boy, frustrated in his intention to marry a girl, would attempt to revenge himself on his meddling family. To accomplish his purpose, he marries an Indian girl whom he meets in his wanderings through New Mexico, brings her back to New York and introduces her to his thoroughly outraged family.

The most praiseworthy, if we must draw distinctions, of a series of fine performances, are those of Miss Sydney and Gene Raymond in the leading roles. But H. B. Warner, Laura Hope Crews and Monroe Owsley, in the principal supporting roles, all give extraordinary intelligent and so-called performance.

"Behold My Wife" which is a B. P. Schulberg production, was directed by Mitchell Leisen who adds this picture to his recent triumphs, "Death Takes a Holiday" and "Murder at the Vanities."

on the night of his wedding. An ugly construction is put of this by Iris, herself, to protect the name of the dead man. Iris' brother, Gerald, takes sides against her in the general acclamation.

How romance gets back on a straight course between Napier and Iris after this interlude, and what happens in an unexpected, striking finish makes "Outcast Lady" a picture considered definitely first class.

MARIE GALANTE

SWEET ADELIN

Hugh Herbert can't be insulted about his face.

It's a funny face and Herbert knows it. He also knows that there's a fortune in it because it is funny. Just now that face is being funny in the Warner Bros. production, "Sweet Adeline," which comes to the Alhambra and Central on Sunday.

"Sweet Adeline" is Warner Bros. latest musical spectacle, based on the Broadway hit by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein II, who also wrote the music and lyrics.

Irene Dunne has the stellar role with Donald Woods playing opposite her. Others in the cast include besides Herbert, Ned Sparks, Joseph Cawthorn, Louis Calhern and Winifred Shaw. Mervyn LeRoy directed the production from the screen play by Edwin S. Gelsey, while Bobby Connolly staged the ensembles in which scores of beautiful girls take part.

THE PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS

The flirtatious escapades of a real girl in a Revolutionary household, encountered in the diary of an old colonist, first gave Armina Marshall the idea for the character of the vixenish "Meg," played by Barbara Barondess in Paramount's "The Pursuit of Happiness," starring Francis Lederer and opening to-morrow at the Alhambra Theatre.

When Miss Marshall was preparing the material for the comedy of Revolutionary War days, which was later to become a Broadway success, in collaboration with Lawrence Langner, she came across an old book entitled "C. Marshall's Diary."

In it was the living prototype of Meg, a servant in the home of the august Mr. Marshall, referred to as "Naughty Polly." The chief business of the diary seemed to be reporting the upheaval caused in his domestic life by the same Polly.

Directed by Alexander Hall, "The Pursuit of Happiness" is a comedy of love and manners in the colourful days when the colonies were fighting for independence. Joan Bennett, Charlie Ruggles and Mary Boland are featured.

Ruth Chatterton may also play in a film about the Empress Josephine. Information on this is vague.

DEVIL DOGS OF THE AIR

An Excellent Picture

Now and again it is extremely pleasant to sit quietly in a chair and give oneself up to the scenes of something realistically portrayed on the screen and in the picture "Devil Dogs of the Air" now showing at the Central Theatre we have this pleasure afforded us.

In this picture James Cagney and Pat O'Brien, as two Marines, carry their private feud into the air as "The Marines Devil Dogs."

The story sets the final stamp of conviction upon the notion that all men in uniform automatically give up the girl they love in favour of a "buddy" but it is not the story that is important.

What is really excellent is the portrait James Cagney paints as a belligerent, cock-sure flier, remodelled by the discipline of the Marine Corps. The stunt flying is remarkable and gives the audience the same pleasant sort of thrill that is wont to come by seeing something that is really dangerous but spectacularly performed.

NO LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, April 18.

In his "Hindenburg," which has just been published, Herr Emil Ludwig relates the President's first meeting with Herr Hitler.

This was on Aug. 13, 1932.

Herr Hitler appeared, accompanied by Herr Roehm and Frick. He turned to close the door and found that this had already been done by a servant. As he advanced he stumbled over the carpet. Then he made a deep bow.

The President, who was himself standing with his Ministers and staff around him, did not ask Herr Hitler to sit down.

Their conversation ran as follows: "I have sent for you to ask you whether you will collaborate with

"DOCTOR X"

Thriller At The Alhambra

Full of thrills and with suspense from beginning to end, "Doctor X" now showing at the Alhambra Theatre will provide movie fans with something out of the ordinary "mystery pictures."

Six murders in six successive months and all during the full moon in the vicinity of a medical centre on someone connected with the College.

Lee Tracy as the reporter bangles in to the last crime and Lionel Atwill as Doctor X asks the police to allow him to conduct his own experiments to bring the culprit to justice so as to avoid publicity to the College.

Going away from the College to another destination for the experiments, Tracy follows and is put out by the "mystery person." In the first experiment in the reconstruction of the crime, one of the research doctors of the College is murdered in identically the same way and a subsequent test carried out.....but that would be telling too much. Suffice it to say that the denouement, startling as is surprising, is obliterated by the struggle between Tracy and the "murderer" in the climax.

Those who have seen "The Mystery of the Wax Museum" will rejoice to hear that this picture surpasses it in the matter of thrills and excitement, and sitting as a member of the audience one feels a creepy sensation up and down one's spine as one watches the scenes.

The romance in the picture is supplied by Fay Wray and Tracy. Others in the cast are Preston Foster, Arthur Edmund Carewe, John Wray, Harry Beresford, Lella Bennett and others.—O. M. O.

Chancellor von Papen as his subordinate.

"I have already stated my conditions to the Chancellor."

"You insist, therefore, on holding the premier position?"

"I want some such position as Mussolini holds in Italy."

"I cannot square that with my conscience." (Pause.) "For the future I should advise you to show chivalry in political struggles."

The Field-Marshal's dislike for the National Socialist leader, Herr Ludwig comments, must have been intensified by personal observation. Otherwise, he would not have treated the future Fuehrer like a schoolboy.

TAILOR SENT TO GAOL

Kwan Yau, 26, tailor. When pleaded guilty to seven charges of theft by bailee of cloth and suitings, the property of six Indian gunners of the 1st Mountain Battery, Whitefield Barracks before Mr. Wynn-Jones yesterday he was sentenced to 14 weeks' hard labour.

The defendant stated that the Indian would not pay him money, so he did not hand over the suitings and cloth, but pawned them. The Magistrate: You cannot recompense yourself by pawning the cloth.

Det-Sergt. Davis, prosecuting, said defendant was employed as a tailor and occupied a machine with space in another tailor's shop. The defendant was known to the Indian troops as a tailor, and obtained regular work from them. The total value of property involved in the case was $33.89.

COMMITTED TO SESSIONS

Lower court proceedings were concluded before Mr. W. Schofield at Central Magistracy yesterday in the case in which Chan Shing Shun and Ng King were charged with having on December 23, 1934 and March 27, 1935 did counsel, procure or cause grievous bodily harm to Yu Sze Mui with intent to disfigure or disable her.

Both accused were committed to stand their trial at the next Criminal Sessions.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, prosecuted, while Mr. Peter H. Sin appeared for both the accused.

T. Murray, Assistant Director of Criminal Intelligence, gave evidence to the effect that he was present at the Victoria Gaol when the complainant, Yu Sze Mui identified the second accused. All other witnesses called at yesterday's hearing also gave formal evidence. In course of which Leung Li, a married woman, Li Dung, a room-boy of the Luk Kok Boarding House and David Wong, Police interpreter, spoke in the witness box. Mr. Sin reserved his defence.

WIDOW IN TROUBLE

Chau Lim a widow aged 47, again appeared before Mr. Macfadyen yesterday on charges of (a) having control of Kwok Wai Chi 22, between April, 1931 and April 21, 1935 and forcing her to be a prostitute and (b), keeping an unregistered mul-tsal.

When the case was called yesterday the mother of the complainant who was brought down from the village gave evidence and said that when her daughter visited her at the beginning of the year and she did not mention anything about her being forced to become a prostitute. The complainant told witness that she was working as a waitress in a tea-house.

At this stage the magistrate dismissed the case against the defendant and told the girl that it was a very serious matter to lie in Court. He further asked if she would like to go back to her own mother. She answered in the negative and said that she would go and stay with a certain man.

In the second charge, Inspector Andrew in evidence said that on April 25, he found that the second complainant chopping wood in the kitchen.

The girl then gave evidence and said that she was the adopted daughter of the defendant. She did the work of her own free will and also stated that defendant had asked her to go to school but she refused.

The Magistrate dismissed the charge on insufficient evidence, and suggested that the girls should go to the S.C.A. where some settlement may be arranged.

BANSHEE COMMITTED

Arrested by Chinese Constable Yau On, on April 28 in Shanghai Street, near Koon Chung Market, Fong Tat Ting, alias Fong Kai Ming was brought before Mr. E. I. Wynn-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday charged with a breach of the Deportation Ordinance.

Sergt. H. N. Moran, officer in charge of Criminal Records, deposed to defendant's record which showed that he had had five previous convictions. He was deported on July 30, 1934 for 10 years.

Asked what he had to say before being committed for trial at the Supreme Court, defendant said "I wanted to see my wife and daughter." Defendant was accordingly committed.

GIRL PAID NO WAGES

On remand, a man named Leung Ho-wing, aged 57, appeared before Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday in answer to a summons for keeping an unregistered "mul-tsal." Wai Yau, "alias" Loi Hui, aged 18.

Inspector H. W. Fraser, of the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs, stated that enquiries had been made regarding defendant, and it had been found that he was really a poor man. His son was an N.C.O. in the Chinese army at Kwangsi, while his nephew worked as a clerk in a Kwangsi bank.

Defendant was fined $10.

Yu Li-shi, a married woman, residing at No. 2 Tin Lok Lane, first floor, appeared in answer to a summons for failing to pay wages to her registered "mul-tsal." Au Shun-ye, aged 17.

Defendant stated that she could not afford to pay the girl at once, but would pay her in instalments. The girl had been told before that defendant could not afford to pay, but she stated that she did not wish to leave and said she would not ask for wages.

The Magistrate ordered defendant to pay monthly instalments of $10 for the girl's account to the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs.

EXTRADITION CASE

A further formal remand of one week was granted, on the application of Mr. J. A. Fraser, when Leung Kin-ping, whose extradition is being sought by the Chinese authorities in Shanghai for the alleged embezzlement of money from the National Postal Savings Bank in Shanghai, appeared before Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, is appearing for the prosecution, while Mr. T. P. K. Kemble is appearing on behalf of the fugitive.

Mr. Fraser stated that from what he had seen of the evidence, the hearing of the case would occupy about three or four days. Sessions week would take place on the 20th and 24th; therefore, it would not be possible to fix a date for the hearing until after the Sessions.

THEATRE FINED

San Tit Sum licensee of the No-bility Theatre at Tam Kung Road was yesterday summoned for causing three entrances and exits on the West side of the theatre to be closed or locked by collapsible door on April 24 at 3 p.m. and on the same day and time to cause the public gangway to be locked by doors. Pleading guilty defendant was fined $100 on each summons. Mr. W. M. Smith, Inspection Officer of the Fire Brigade, prosecuted.

THE CHINESE BIBLE

A Change Of Attitude

"Very recently the World Book Company of Shanghai, one of the largest publishing houses in the Far East, issued an anthology of Chinese prose, under the title of 'Short Choice Selections', writes the Rev. G. W. Sheppard, the British and Foreign Bible Society's Secretary for China. "It is a book of 500 pages and consists of extracts from well-known Chinese prose writers; and among the selections given are two from the Chinese Bible (Mandarin Union Version)." The first is a group of extracts from St. Matthew's Gospel, and the other is from St. Mark's Gospel—the whole of the fourteenth chapter.

"There is something very significant about this," Mr. Sheppard goes on to say. "When the Union Version was made the literati of China were contemptuous of any writing which approximated to the spoken language. It was not from their point of view, 'literature' at all. To-day, however, passages from the same version are here placed side by side with what are regarded as the best specimens of modern literature. There is an even deeper significance. A change of mental attitude has taken place, and the Christian Scriptures are esteemed not only as literature, but as treasures of wisdom and records of great history."

The Jubilee

Sir,—As a hardened globe trotter and keen Britisher I think Hong Kong is to be heartily congratulated on the splendid Jubilee Manifestations put forward recently. These, in variety, beauty, exceed the splendour of such similar functions that it has been my fortune to see in various Capitals and countries in Europe. Much work and organising ability has been shown here in these events, the result being a highly creditable showing, in this outpost of the Empire. One is, particularly, pleased with what the Chinese have done to add, materially, to the general rejoicing, their day and night processions were unique. The International aspect and good will shown in these rejoicings must surely be most gratifying, such as the above mentioned Chinese activities the Japanese fire-works display, the courtesies shown and paid by various Consular bodies and from Macao—even to the brave showing of flags on the humble fishing junks at Aberdeen.

The Shipping made a particularly fine show including His Majesty's vessels and Merchant vessels of all nationalities, Chinese, Japanese, Dutch, Danish and Norwegian, with one marked exception, commented on by many, and that is that one vessel, apparently one of His Majesty's Royal Fleet Auxiliary units, lay drab and sombre at her buoy in the harbour seemingly taking no part in the general colourful manifestations day or night, surely a strange feature in such an essentially British event, in which the whole community of every nationality joined, ashore and afloat.—Yours etc.

Hong Kong, 8th May, 1935.

REAR-ADMIRAL DAVENPORT

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, April 18.

The Admiralty announce that the following appointments have been approved:—

Rear-Admiral Robert C. Davenport to be Rear-Admiral and Commanding Officer, Coast of Scotland, in succession to Rear-Admiral Everard J. Hardman-Jones, to date July 15, 1935.

Rear-Admiral Gerald C. Dickens to be Rear-Admiral commanding 10th Cruiser Squadron, temporarily for the Jubilee Naval Review, to date July 1, 1935. Rear-Admiral Dickens will hoist his flag in H.M.S. Cardiff.

Rear-Admiral Charles G. Ramsey to be Rear-Admiral (D) commanding reserve fleet destroyer flotillas, temporarily for the Jubilee Naval Review, to date July 1, 1935. Rear-Admiral Ramsey will hoist his flag in H.M.S. Broke.

THE TRADE IN ARMS

Long Labours Ended

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, April 18.

The Geneva Committee for the Regulation of the Trade in and Manufacture of Arms has ended its long labours with a closer approximation of views than seemed at the outset to be possible. There are still points of difference, which are embodied in reservations to the report now handed in to Mr. Henderson; but they are differences of degree and of method rather than of principle. The French and the American delegations wished to establish at once a drastic system of supervision, under which a central commission would be able to send investigators into the shops where arms, or presumably, parts of arms were made; and they wished each country to make returns of manufacture in which every item would be detailed. The British and some other delegations preferred for the present that each Government should be responsible for its own supervision, and that the returns made to Geneva should, show totals of categories and not details. The British delegates did not say that their Government would never agree to closer international inspection; but they believed that this could not yet be made acceptable to all countries, and that it was better to draw up a Convention, which, if modest, would find general agreement, rather than a more ambitious one which could not be accepted.

SOUND ARGUMENTS

There are sound arguments for either course, but the British view gained ground in the later stages of the proceedings, which in any case in the absence of Germany had a more or less provisional character. The valuable principle of supervision has been accepted by Herr Hitler, but it may be just as well to wait until his representative is present again before deciding upon the exact form which it should take. In any case there is general agreement that the State should in future assume entire responsibility for the production of arms within its frontiers—whether the manufacture is in private or in State hands—and that all reports should be addressed to a central and permanent Disarmament Commission sitting at Geneva. It was also agreed that State and private manufacture should receive equal treatment. There was general support for the licensing system, which already obtains in this country and for budgetary publicity, which is normal in Parliamentary countries but unfortunately less common in those that are autocratically ruled.

COMPLICATED SUBJECT

The subject is one of the most complicated with which the Disarmament Conference has had to deal. The stage of manufacture at which arms can properly be examined is a vexed question; and

OBITUARY

Mr. H. R. Landolt

His many friends in Hong Kong will learn with regret of the death in Sydney on Tuesday of Mr. H. R. Landolt. The sad news was received by his family in Hong Kong yesterday.

Deceased was the son of the late Mr. J. Landolt, who died in Hong Kong recently, and was a well-known resident here. Before he took ill and went to Australia some 18 months ago, he played hockey for the St. Andrew's Club in the Marnak tournament. He was educated at the Diocesan Boys' School and was only 29 years of age. He was married three years ago.

A brother, Mr. J. S. Landolt, of the Canadian Pacific Steamship Co., and a sister, Miss E. Landolt, are in Hong Kong.

MORE CEMENT ARRESTS

High Officials Involved

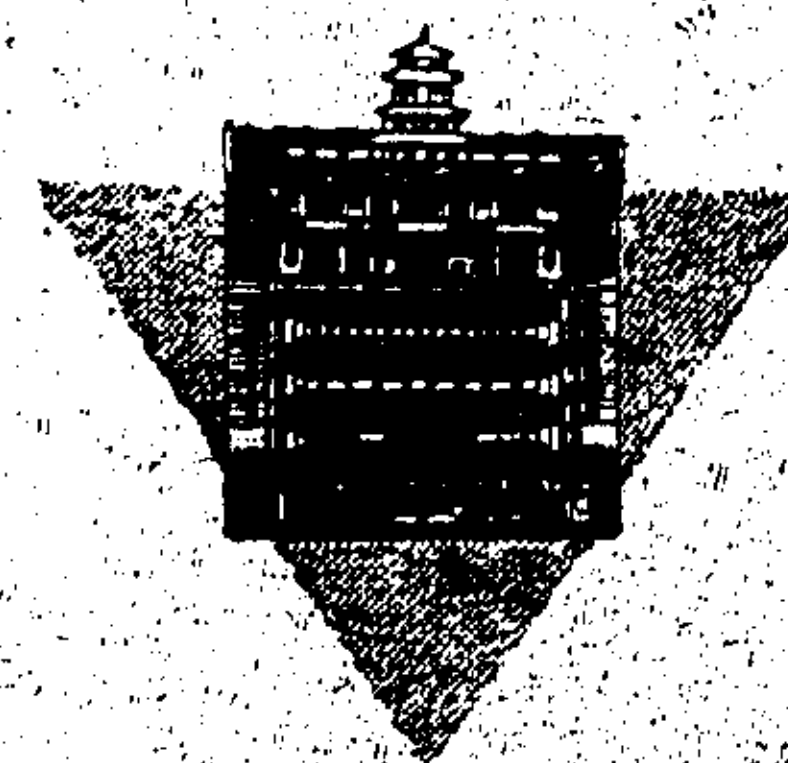

Tokyo April 28. The Osaka "cement scandal" is still spreading.

On Sunday morning (28th inst.), Osaka prefectural detective brought back four persons from Tokyo. They are Kichi Ishikawa, (40), an official of the Accounting Department of the Railway Department, Yoshiaki Imoto (44), Tokyo Branch Manager of the Abe Cement Company, Ishichiro Tanaka (47) of the Iwaki Cement Tokyo Branch, and Tatsuji Ohashi (37), Tokyo Branch manager of the Osaka Yogyo Cement Company. All of them are detained at the Prefectural Office.

The "Asahi" says that being in charge of purchasing cement and other material, Ishikawa, one of the above-mentioned, is believed to have accepted several thousand yen from various Government contractors, in union with Bunji Sasaki of the same Department, who is already in custody. The other three are also believed to have accepted fairly large bribes.

The Osaka journal presumes that the examination of these four persons will reveal another scandal involving higher officials of the Railway Department. Apparently for this purpose, Osaka prefectural detectives are to visit Tokyo again, says the "Asahi."

there are many products, like aeroplanes and gas, which have civil as well as military uses. It does not seem probable that more could have been done at this stage at Geneva; but undoubtedly the feelings of the majority of English men and women are expressed in the Memorandum which leaders of the Church addressed to the Royal Commission on the Manufacture of and Trading in Arms, in which they said that it was repugnant to Christian morality that the profits of an industry should depend on the degree of suspicion and hostility which exists between nations. Everything that can be done to 'take the profit out of war' will certainly have the full support of public opinion in this country.

THE CALL OF DUTY NEVER FAILED

THE MANY FINE QUALITIES OF THE MAN

London, May 6.

There has been no more apt characterisation of King George than that applied to him once by Lord Morley after a visit to Windsor Castle.

"Conscientious!"—said Lord Morley—"He is full of conscience."

His Most Excellent Majesty George the Fifth, by the grace of God of Great Britain, Ireland and the British Dominions, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India—always bows before an inner Sovereign. His conscience is his King.

From his youth up, the call of duty has never failed to command a prompt, steady and cheerful response. Submission is never a martyrdom; by obedience he qualifies himself to rule.

He is naturally and by training thorough in all he undertakes. As in youth he set himself to master seamanship, as in manhood he served a faithful apprenticeship to Kingcraft, so when destiny called him to the highest position, in Commonwealth he devoted himself unreservedly to the due performance of his allotted task.

He has a vigorous and well-stored mind and a tenacious memory. His personal knowledge of his kingdom and Empire is more extensive than that of any other man in his dominions. Observation of scenes, events, and men, has been supplemented by close study of the problems of government. In all these matters George V. is qualified to advise his advisers.

He has but one object in life. It is to promote the welfare of his people. He holds fast to the principle that peace and goodwill among all classes are of supreme importance to national well-being; and he clings no less tenaciously to the ideal of closer and ever closer union between all parts of the wide-flung Empire, as the surest hope of prosperity for his own people, and the surest guarantee of the peace of the world.

BROAD HUMAN SYMPATHY

The characteristic which perhaps more than any other endears King George to his people is his broad human sympathy.

He is the most democratic monarch that ever sat upon a throne. No good cause appeals to him in vain for help or countenance. Misfortune, hardship, or disaster never fail to move him to quick and genuine sympathy.

The War, with its terrible tale of suffering and bereavement, early in his reign brought out the many fine qualities of the man. He shared to the full in the anxieties and privations which afflicted the nation; he sorrowed acutely with the sorrowing, but he never lost courage; and by precept and example he led the way in upholding the spirit of the people through the long struggle.

There was something far deeper than mere popularity in the feeling which found spontaneous expression when the news was given to the world that the Armistice had been signed.

The countless thousands who, wild with delight, made Buckingham Palace their Mecca were but representative of the feeling of the millions of the Empire—not only loyalty to the Throne, but a deep and abiding affection for the person of the occupant.

He shares his people's love for all healthy sport, and his happiest hours of leisure are spent in his yacht. He is not so regular a racegoer as his father, but he has the Englishman's love of a good horse and is a keen judge of a race. He often attends rugby by international and the Football Cup final, as well as cricket test matches.

MODEL SQUIRE AND LAIRD

The life that appeals to him most of all is that of an English country gentleman. He takes great interest in the management of his estates at Sandringham and Balmoral, and is never happier than when he is filling the parts of model squire and laird.

He is naturally abstemious, whether in eating, drinking or smoking. He prefers cigarettes to a cigar, but occasionally smokes a briar pipe.

His intellectual gifts are wide. Some of his public speeches take high place among examples of modern oratory. He likes to add to his knowledge by conversation, rather than by books. Learned men are frequently his guests, and the tutor of his youth remains his friend and confidant. He is an enthusiastic collector of stamps, and has amassed what is probably the most valuable collection in the world. He is as thorough in his hobbies as in other respects, and, more than a collector, he is a learned philatelist.

Happily for King George, for his Throne, and for the Nation, he has as wife one whom he regards as his inspirator and helpmate. He was once asked by an old friend who of his many advisers had been of the greatest service to him. "My wife," he replied, without a moment's hesitation.

Many State duties are left entirely in the Queen's hands. There is no appeal from her decision in the matter of presentations at Court, and she revises the King's visiting list. But her influence is not confined to this narrow sphere.

A gracious lady of strong character, highly educated, well read, with a broad outlook on life and modern and progressive ideas, she is eminently qualified to fill the place of Queen.

No rulers throughout the range of British history have been so closely associated in public life as King George and Queen Mary. Strong and secure in mutual love and confidence, the royal pair share equally all the cares, responsibilities, labours and joys incidental to their position. One in aim, one in their love for their people, one in the desire to be of service, they merit the love and loyalty which has been their reward.

A GREAT QUEEN

Queen Mary's goodness was universally acclaimed long before her greatness was fully recognised. In later years it has slowly dawned upon the public consciousness that Queen Mary is not only a good woman, but a great Queen. History will surely rank her high on the roll of Royal Consorts.

So close has been the union between King and Queen that Queen Mary's separate personality has been slow to impress itself upon the public mind.

It was not until the War came that the people were afforded a glimpse of the woman of dauntless courage, warm-hearted, feeling intensely for all suffer, pain or bereavement, and seeking daily opportunities to comfort and sympathise.

In Queen Mary, strong practical commonsense is transfused with sympathy, and the impress of her personality becomes visible throughout the entire sphere of women's work.

Queen Mary's leadership of the nation's womanhood is one of the great achievements of her life. She sees clearly the need for the help of woman in the settlement of the problems resulting from the war. Recognising the larger part which women are being called upon to play in public and industrial work, she has called upon the daughters of the Empire to continue in peace the "sisterhood of service" which united them in war, and she has never ceased to hold and declare that the highest ideal of womanhood is to be wife and mother.

The feeling evoked among all classes at the time of the King's severe illness was marked by deep sympathy with the Queen, and unbounded admiration for the courage she displayed throughout that period of severe trial.

The whole nation rejoiced with her at the lifting of the cloud of anxiety.

The King and Queen, who are 66 and 67 respectively, have four living sons and one daughter. Their youngest son, Prince John, died in 1916 at the age of 13.

The heir to the Throne is the Prince of Wales, who will be 41 on June 24 this year. Although two of his brothers have married, the Prince of Wales, like the Duke of Gloucester, the King's third son, remains a bachelor.

The first of the King's sons to marry was his second son, the Duke of York, who in 1923 wedded Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, daughter of the 14th Earl of Strathmore.

They have two daughters, Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary, of York, who celebrated her ninth birthday on April 21; and Princess Margaret Rose, of York, who will be five years of age on August 21.

Their Majesties' only daughter is the Princess Royal, formerly known as Princess Mary, who in 1922 married Viscount Lascelles, now Earl of Harewood.

Their first child, George Henry Hubert, later to become Viscount Lascelles, is the first grandson of the King and Queen. He was 12 years of age on February 7.

The Princess Royal and Viscount Lascelles have another son, Gerald David, who will be 11 years next August.

The third of the King's sons is Prince Henry, Duke of Gloucester, who represented His Majesty at the Centenary of the State of Victoria. He is 35.

The fourth son is Prince George, Duke of Kent, whose marriage last November to Princess Marina of Greece was one of the most brilliant events witnessed in London for many years. The Duke is 33 years of age.

The King has two sisters living: Princess Victoria and Queen Maud of Norway; an uncle, the Duke of Connaught; and two aunts, Princess Louise and Princess Beatrice, mother of ex-Queen Ena of Spain.

THE JAMBORALLY

Scouts And Guides Give Fine Display

JUBILEE CELEBRATIONS

The main feature of yesterday's celebrations in connection with the Silver Jubilee was the Jamborally presented by the Scouts and Guides at Happy Valley in the presence of a large and distinguished gathering which included His Excellency the Governor and Lady Peel.

The function was a brilliant success, the performers putting up a smart display.

The Dragon and Lantern Processions were continued and as on previous occasions, attracted thousands of spectators who lined the streets hours before they were due to commence.

The illumination of the city, the Peak, the harbour and the mainland were maintained.

The illuminations, however, were considerably curtailed, the harbour and the waterfront of Kowloon being unlighted, though lighting of the majority of the buildings in the town and the Peak was maintained.

WONDERFUL EXHIBITION

It would perhaps be correct to say that never in their history have the Scouts, Guides, Cubs and Brownies given such a brilliant display as the one they presented on the Hong Kong Football Club ground, Happy Valley yesterday when they held a Jamborally in celebration of the Silver Jubilee.

The display was watched by thousands of interested spectators, including His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, K.C., M.G., K.B.E., and Lady Peel, and the remarks heard around the field about the "wonderful exhibition" spoke volumes of the efforts of the organisers and performers.

Among those present were His Excellency Major-General O. C. Borrett, Hon. Sir Thomas Southorn, Bishop Valtora, Bishop R. O. Hall and Mrs. Hall, His Honour Mr. A.D.A. MacGregor and Mrs. MacGregor, Lady Margaret, Ho Tung, Hon. Sir William and Lady Shenton, Sir William Hornell, Hon. Dr. and Mrs. R. H. Kotewall, Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau, Mons. H. van der Straeten (Consul-General for Belgium) and Madame Straeten, Herr R. Gipperich (Consul-General for Germany) and Fraulein Gipperich, M. R. Soulangue-Tessier (Consul-General for France), Mr. Justice R. E. Lindsell, Mr. E. Cock, Major C. M. Manners, Hon. Mr. N. L. Smith and Mrs. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Kidusawa, Col. H. B. L. Dowling, and Mr. Tang Shiu Kin.

His Excellency the Governor and Lady Peel, who were accompanied by Capt. R. F. Walter, A.D.C., were met on arrival by Lady Southorn, O.B.E., Commissioner of Guides and Rev. N. V. Halward, M.C., Scouts Commissioner. The official party then stood on the platform to watch the march-past which was performed with alacrity and smartness and which deservedly won loud applause from the spectators. Over 80 scouts from Macao and the same number from Canton under the leadership of Mr. A. T. Bonifay and Mr. Tam respectively, also took part in the parade and they also acquitted themselves creditably.

It was a delight to watch the tiny Cubs and Brownies respond to the "eyes left" and "although, as was naturally expected, they were not in perfect order, they nevertheless won the praise of all those present by their smart turn-out.

The parade was followed by the playing of the National Anthem and Dipping of Colours, after which the Commissioner called three cheers for His Majesty the King. This was heartily responded to.

Lady Peel then presented the Guide Colony Standard to Lady Southorn, Colony Commissioner, after which His Excellency the Governor received a Thanks Badge from the hands of Rev. Halward. A similar ceremony was performed by Lady Southorn who presented a Thanks Badge to Lady Peel.

Three cheers were then called for His Excellency and Lady Peel, after which the Wolf Cubs and Brownies gave the Grand Howl.

BRIDGE BUILDING

Selected Scouts holding the Pioneer Badge then gave a display of Bridge Building while in other parts of the field, there were demonstrations of tent pegging, signals, etc. There was also a gymnastic display, and although the others were carried out in an efficient manner, this deserved special mention, for the performers concerned put up such a magnificent exhibition that it compared favourably with those performed by "experts." This was evident by the loud applause.

A floral pageant was then presented by the Guides and Brownies, and after a flower dance had been given by three separate parties, a beautiful arch was formed in front of the "official" stand. Several girls dressed up as fairies then passed the arch, and one of them presented His Excellency with a buttonhole, while Lady Peel received a beautiful album from another.

GRAND FINALE

This concluded the Jamborally and the spectators left their seats and walked round the field to view the various displays by Scouts and Guides. Life-saving at sea was efficiently demonstrated by the Sea Scouts, while the guides revealed their wonderful knowledge in domestic—exhibiting various items concerning cooking, washing, etc.

FASTER TRAVEL.

In announcing that the constructional possibilities of civil aircraft go far beyond anything that has been realized hitherto, the chairman of Imperial Airways mentioned that actually the limits to-day are determined only by what the public are willing to pay. It therefore follows that if governments are prepared to pay more for ground services and in subsidies, and passengers are ready to pay higher fares, then quicker regular air services could be easily provided between England and Australia and also a safe trans-Atlantic service, bringing England and America closer than ever to each other. This indicates that the recent dramatic air race from England to Australia provided one of those turning points which have marked the history of air travel. And here it may be asked that if the journey from England to Melbourne can be made in three days, then why cannot the time taken for the air mail service be brought down by a considerable margin? And from what the chairman of Imperial Airways said, the answer seems to be that it can be brought down by at least 50 per cent, provided of course, the necessary funds are forthcoming.

There is no need to say that the race stirred public opinion in Britain to such an extent that the people have been clamouring for faster and better inter-Imperial communication, and as promptly as the demands were made came the announcement from Imperial Airways that they were prepared to supply a regular seven-day service from England to Australia, carrying both passengers and mails. That, however, is not all for it had long since been apparent that Britain was not willing to be behind hand in preparing for a regular trans-Atlantic service, and as is a well-known fact, Imperial Airways are already experimenting with new types of planes and also with a composite flying vessel capable of lifting and launching into the air a heavily laden seaplane. From present indications it would seem that the solution of the problem of regular services between Britain and the United States will be found in the use of floating, anchored aerodromes.

Such a service no longer holds out economic difficulties for it can become a success just as soon as the nations agree to co-operate in their use of the floating ports and the time does not seem far distant when New Yorkers will be able to pay week-end visits to London.

In conclusion we cannot resist making mention of the fact that through our utter lack of an organized air service, Hong Kong is so near and yet so far from Rangoon which is so easily reached by Singapore thanks to their better enterprise in the matter of air mails.

EUROPEAN LADY

ROBBED

Semi-Conscious In Pathway

According to a Police report last night, Mrs. Anderson, wife of Capt. F. T. M. Anderson, R.A.M.C., was the victim of a bagmanning outrage in Bowen Road shortly after 5 o'clock last evening. Although no details were available last night we were informed by Police Headquarters that the bag was subsequently recovered with all its contents intact.

From a reliable source we learn that the crime was discovered when a soldier, on returning to his quarters, found Mrs. Anderson in a semi-conscious state, lying in the pathway. He immediately raised the alarm and when help was forthcoming the lady was removed to the Military Hospital where it was discovered that she had a wound in the back of her head though it was not known how it was caused.

It is understood an X-ray examination will be carried out this morning.

Special Jubilee
Number

We take pleasure in announcing that we shall be issuing a Special Silver Jubilee Number of the Hong Kong Weekly Press on Saturday.

Included in the issue will be the reports on the local Jubilee celebrations including accounts of the Thanksgiving Services, Public Meeting, Garden Party at Government House, The Review of His Majesty's Forces, the Dragon and Lantern Processions, the decorations and illuminations and the fireworks displays.

There will also be seventy pictures of Hong Kong in her Jubilee Garb and the "Weekly" will be most fitting as a souvenir of the occasion while it would also make an ideal present for the folks at home and abroad.

As there will be a big demand for it we suggest that those desiring to secure copies kindly place their orders early.

London, May 8. 1,000,000,000 new English postage stamps of the denominations of one farthing, one penny, one and a half penny, and two pence which were issued to commemorate King George V. Jubilee were put on sale on Tuesday. 20,000,000 of these were sold on the first day. Simultaneously the sale of the special Jubilee stamps began all over the Dominions and Crown Colonies and dependencies of the British Empire, each of which is issuing its own designs. Altogether over 200 Jubilee stamps appeared for the whole Empire.

ABYSSINIA TO

BLAME

Italy's Accusations

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, May 8, 4.30 p.m.)

Rome, May 8.

Open and veiled hostility towards Italy as well as non-observance of the friendship treaty were the accusations levelled against the Abyssinian Government by the Under Secretary for the Colonies, Lessona, in a sharply worded speech during the debate on the Colonial Budget. Obstacles were placed in the way of the Italian economic activity in Abyssinia. The Fascist Government, therefore, intended to clear up relations with Abyssinia once and for all and demanded that the border incidents should cease and the friendship treaty of 1928 be observed.

Lessona went on to assert that the Abyssinian State, in its present form was a suppression of the various independent African tribes by Abyssinia through the barbaric system of slavery and which not only the security of Italy's African Colonies, but also Europe's civilizing mission was concerned.

Transocean Kuo Min.

MORE TROOPS

Rome, May 7. Still further precautionary measures for the security of the Italian East African colonies are rendered indispensable by certain factors, according to a statement issued by the semi-official Stefani agency.

These factors were given as (1) the exceptionally large shipments of arms made to Addis Ababa by European armament firms whose identity have been "definitely established"; (2) The Abyssinian Government has taken measures for mobilisation; (3) the speech recently made by the Abyssinian Emperor.

Mussolini has accordingly ordered the mobilisation of the Sabauda de Cagliari division of army and two divisions of blackshirts named "23rd March" and "28th October" respectively and in addition a number of separate blackshirt battalions are being mobilised in Palermo, Cuneo, Ravenna and Forli.

In order to bring the various units up to war-strength those of the 1913 class who had been exempted from military service and merely undergone six months training are now being called up, thus bringing the entire classes of 1911, 1913, 1914 under colours and the total forces sent to East Africa are estimated by competent authorities to be over 280,000.

IMPORTATION OF ARMS

Rome, May 7.

A Foreign Office spokesman here to-day emphasised that one of the most important questions with regard to the Abyssinian situation was what arms are being imported. It is known that a large quantity are being brought into the country, mostly machine-guns, and Italy wants to know Abyssinia's intentions.

"European nations," said the spokesman, "are furnishing arms to these natives who have been ordered to shoot down the white Italian citizens of Eritrea and Somaliland. It is essential therefore that Italy should be prepared. Signor Mussolini will not tolerate such a situation."

ABYSSINIAN RESOURCES

London, May 7.

Italy is still ready for a friendly settlement of the dispute with Abyssinia, and is ready to appoint members of a Conciliation Committee, but Italy is prepared to act as well as talk, Reuter learns from Italian sources in London.

Abyssinian resources according to some authorities are 900,000 rifles, 1,500 machine guns, seven tanks, 300 field guns in addition to outstanding orders to European armament firms. It is reported that Abyssinia has 700,000 men mobilised.

MOSCOW'S EXCLUSION

OF THE PRESS

Caustic Comment In France

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, May 8, 7.30 p.m.)

Paris, May 8.

"Le Matin" announces on Wednesday morning that the Soviet Embassy in Paris refused to grant a visa to the papers' special correspondents who were to have accompanied Laval on the Moscow journey. The refusal holds good for any correspondents named by the paper and is evidently attributable to "Le Matin's" well-known antagonistic attitude towards the Soviet Union and to the Franco-Russian Pact.

On informing its readers of the Soviet Embassy's decision the paper remarks ironically that it feels itself very highly flattered by the action which affords proof of its independent opinion.

Transocean Kuo Min.

"Le Matin" further says that "our readers will be better informed of what is going on in Moscow by us than by those who are invited as guests of honour to participate as caviar in the Kremlin. No doubt they have something to conceal but we shall find it out."

"Le Journal" whose correspondent some time ago was likewise refused a visa by the Soviets, declares that "Le Matin" and "Le Journal" will not be the only papers unrepresented in Moscow since "Petit Parisien," "Echo de Paris" and "Figaro" have also decided not to send special correspondents to Moscow.

Even if the Soviet ultimately granted the visas applied for, the paper adds that "Le Journal" would not send any member of its staff to a "country with so far from civilized a government."

POLITICAL
CONTACTAim Of Laval's
Visit

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, May 8, 4.30 p.m.)

Paris, May 8.

To establish contact with the Polish political leaders is the most important aim of Laval's eastern journey, declares "Le Matin." "The visit to Moscow is mainly a platonic demonstration since nothing remains to be added to the good relations already existing between France and Russia. The only thing yet to be done after the conclusion of the Franco-Russian Pact is to examine the effect this agreement will have on the relations with the Powers to whom France is bound by mutual obligations as well as resume examination of certain points laid down in the Rome and Stresa resolutions whose settlement is still outstanding.

Negotiations Laval will have with the Polish Minister, Beck and other members of the Polish Government alone justify the journey undertaken by the French Foreign Minister on the eve of the League of Nations meeting. The Polish political leaders are showing extreme reserve as reluctant to assume new or extend existing obligations and thus alter the present relations with France, Germany and Soviet Russia. As the Franco-Russian Pact is not enthusiastically received in Poland, Laval's forthcoming visit will give an opportunity to clear up all questions connected with the Pact," concludes "Le Matin."

NEW REFORM
BILL

Interesting Details

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, May 8, 7.30 p.m.)

Warsaw, May 8.

Some interesting details of the proposed electoral reform bill which will shortly be submitted to the extraordinary session of the Sejm has been communicated by Premier Kosciuszko to a meeting in the Government block on Tuesday.

The Premier stressed that the bill is intended to eliminate the political parties entirely from electoral proceedings. Sejm will henceforth comprise two hundred deputies instead of 440, while the Senate will be composed of 96 members instead of 111, one third of the number of Senators to be nominated by the president of the Republic while two thirds are to be elected.

The right to vote in Sejm elections will be granted to all citizens over twenty four years old, while the franchise senate elections will be conferred only on persons who rendered distinguished services to the State and who have attained the age of thirty.

STARVATION IN
ILLINOISSequel To Relief
Stoppage

Springfield, May 8.

A serious situation has developed in Illinois, and the nation is apprehensive since it has discovered that 200,000 men, women and children are facing starvation in different parts of the state, following the closing down of relief depots.

A body of 500 demonstrators marched on the state capital last night to demand that the relief depots be reopened at once.

Trouble began when the state authorities refused to supply their share of the contribution to relief funds and the Federal Relief Administrator, Mr. Hopkins, ordered the depots closed.

The demonstrators' committee has presented the state Legislature with a demand for the appropriation of the necessary funds to put the relief system into operation.

Governor Horner has informed the committee that the only hope of getting the funds was to force the passage of two bills by the Legislature whereby the sales tax could be increased from two to three cents, producing $3,000,000 monthly.

The Republican minority announces that it will oppose increase in the sales tax and will refuse to give the bills the necessary two-thirds majority.

RED ACTIVITIES IN CHINA

London Paper's Views

London, May 7.

Red armies in China may not be really formidable when opposed to good troops, declares the "Times," commenting on the situation in South-west China, but they are a very mobile force.

Their lack of artillery and motor transport is an advantage instead of a hindrance in the wooded and mountainous districts and they maintain themselves by well organised pillage. Their habitual slaughter of landlords' tax collectors and judges probably arouses less indignation than their requisitioning of the peasants of mis-governed districts into which they recently penetrated and the Chinese villager can usually be frightened into submission by a few executions.

Happy for China, the Reds have never been able to secure the support of more than a small minority of country folk. Their very successes have taught their opponents how to fight them. But whether they attempt to conquer Szechuen or embroil China and Tibet by escaping to Szechuan, they can do much mischief yet.

A meeting of the Sanitary Board will be held to-day when business of a purely routine nature will be discussed.

HIS MAJESTY GREETES THE DOMINION PREMIERS

"We Welcome One And All To Our Home"

PROUD AND THANKFUL TO BE HEAD OF A GREAT FAMILY

"We greet the Prime Ministers of the Dominions, now equal partners in the Empire, and I thank them for the addresses from their Parliaments which they have handed me. We welcome one and all to our home," said His Majesty after the Dominion representatives had conveyed the congratulations of his loyal subjects overseas.

"With commonsense and goodwill as our shield and buckler, we have kept in spite of all difficulties our heritage and liberty alike for the individual and our many constituent races. The numberless invisible ties of sentiment and tradition which bind us together are indeed delicate, but many strands make the cable strong to bind us in times of adversity. It is my prayer, no less than my firm belief, that this bond of spirit may prove also a bond of peace."

"Some of you are with a few happy exceptions about my own age," continued His Majesty. "I pray for continuance of God's blessing on your labours with His help. I will work on with you in the years that remain for that object which has ever been next my heart—the welfare of the Mother Country, the Dominions overseas and India, their happiness and their good repute."

King's Message Of Affection And Deep Gratitude To His People

London, May 8.

Yesterday and to-day provide a restful pause for Their Majesties in a hectic round of celebrations. The King reposed all yesterday, but the Queen drove through Hyde Park in the afternoon where she received great ovations from thousands of people.

The only official ceremony was the Prince of Wales' reception at St. James Palace at which he shook hands with two thousand guests including Cabinet Ministers, Dominion representatives and diplomatic officials.

Late last night a huge crowd demonstrated outside Buckingham Palace to their intense satisfaction as both the King and Queen appeared on the balcony. The crowd serenaded with "God Save the King," "Rule Britannia," and "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Their Majesties were obviously enjoying the demonstration and waved hands in acknowledgment.

CONGRATULATIONS

His Majesty to-day returned thanks to the nations of the world for their congratulations on the Jubilee.

The King, wearing the uniform of Admiral of the Fleet, drove from Buckingham Palace accompanied by the Queen, attired in delicate blue satin and sable furs. The Royal car was cheered by the huge crowd that had assembled. The Coldstream and Irish Guards were drawn up and the bands played the National Anthem.

On arrival at St. James Palace, their Majesties proceeded to the Throne Room where the King received a notable assembly consisting of Ambassadors, Ministers and Empire representatives including Dominion Premiers at present in London. The Brazilian Ambassador, as Doyen of the Corps Diplomatique, conveyed congratulations to His Majesty on behalf of his colleagues and then the four Empire Premiers expressed the sentiments of the Dominions and each handed His Majesty an address passed by Dominion Parliaments, to which the King replied.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, and other Ministers wore Jubilee medals presented by the King.

After presentation of the four Dominion addresses, Mr. Higgins, Prime Minister of Southern Rhodesia, briefly spoke, followed by Mr. Thomas on behalf of Newfoundland, Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister for the Colonies and Sir Joseph Shore for India.

KING'S REPLY TO THE DOMINIONS

"We Welcome You To Our Home"

Replying to the Dominions' representatives, the King said: "There is no word which gladdens me more, especially when I hear it used by friends from overseas, many of whom say when they visit this country 'they are coming home.' It is in this spirit that the Queen and I meet you to-day, you who represent vast territories in the Dominions, Colonies and Protectorates, my peoples in India and dwellers in countless isles of the sea from the Pacific to home waters."

"We greet the Prime Ministers of the Dominions, now equal partners in the Empire, and I thank them for the addresses from their Parliaments which they have handed me. We welcome one and all to our home."

"Eventful your visit cannot fail to be. I trust it will be happy also. When the time comes for you to return, I would ask you to take back each to his own people a message of affection, to every member of this great family of which I am so proud and thankful to be the head; and a message of deep gratitude for the loyal and kind words which you have spoken on their behalf."

MANY CLIMES, ONE SPIRIT

"You all who are here to-day and who hold responsible positions will best know what inspiration and encouragement your words are to me to continue the task which twenty five years ago I set myself to do. Before I succeeded my father, the Queen and I had the privilege of studying at first hand the Dominions overseas and India. We were fellow-travellers then as now, comparing notes and sharing impressions. We treasure these memories and keep them alive. Moreover, what we forget our four sons are now able to recall. Many years before our happy partnership began I had, as a midshipman, sailed the Seven Seas. I realised early that the Empire has many climates but one spirit."

"I regard this as a unique gathering where we can tell one another our successes and also our failures and mistakes, but there will be no sharp criticism nor vain regrets for we are in sympathy one with another, conscious that we have acted according to our lights for the good name and ordered prosperity of the family."

BOND OF SPIRIT

"We are sometimes told that we are lacking in logic, our political institutions are loose and undefined, but I look back on the trying and testing time through which we have passed and wonder whether a less flexible system would have withstood the strains to which we have been subjected. With commonsense and goodwill as our shield and buckler, we have kept in spite of all difficulties our heritage and liberty alike for the individual and our many constituent races. The numberless invisible ties of sentiment and tradition which bind us together are indeed delicate, but many strands make the cable strong to bind us in times of adversity. It is my prayer, no less than my firm belief, that this bond of spirit may prove also a bond of peace."

"Some of you are with a few happy exceptions about my own age. I pray for continuance of God's blessing on your labours with His help. I will work on with you in the years that remain for that object which has ever been next my heart—the welfare of the Mother Country, the Dominions overseas and India, their happiness and their good repute."

A QUIET DAY

London, May 7.

The King and Queen spent to-day quietly at Buckingham Palace, and it was authoritatively stated that neither had suffered any ill effects from the strain and excitement of Jubilee Day.

This afternoon, the Queen went for a drive in the West End and was heartily cheered by the crowd which had continued throughout the day in the neighbourhood of the Palace. Many members of the Royal Family, including the King's uncle, the Duke of Connaught, called at the Palace and saw Their Majesties, afterwards inspecting many beautiful Jubilee presents received from personal friends.

Their Majesties still have an arduous programme of engagements ahead of them, extending over a fortnight or three weeks.

To-morrow, the King will drive to St. James Palace, where he will receive members of the Diplomatic Corps at a levee and reception. The Prime Minister and the Brazilian Ambassador, as Doyen of the Corps, will make addresses to the King, who will reply returning thanks to all those countries who have congratulated him upon the attainment of his Silver Jubilee. Telegrams from all parts of the Empire and from communities abroad continue to be received at the Palace in their hundreds.

COMPLETE SUCCESS

London's celebrations, which continued until early morning, when many streets both in the East and West End were filled with singing and dancing crowds, were resumed this evening, when more sightseers came to inspect the decorations and charming flood-lighting effects in the parks and on main buildings.

The complete success with which the Jubilee crowds were good tempered and unostentatiously handled by the police has aroused general admiration, especially of visitors to London. To-day the King sent a message of appreciation and thanks for the excellent police arrangements made for his visit to St. Paul's, and for the safety and comfort of the public, to the Commissioner of Police for the City of London.

CHARITY BENEFITS

About £10,000 will be available for charity as the result of the sale of grandstand seats for the public procession. Of 28,000 seats available, 6,000 had been placed at the disposal of the British Charities Association, and any surplus after meeting the cost of erecting the other 20,000 will also go to charity. There will be further pageantry this week, when, on Thursday, the King proceeds to Westminster Hall to receive a loyal address from both Houses of Parliament.

SHANGHAI "GOES BRITISH"

Shanghai, May 6.

Shanghai, most cosmopolitan of cities, "went British" completely to-day as foreigners of every nationality, as well as Chinese, joined in celebrating the 25th anniversary of the accession to the Throne of King George.

British flags were in evidence everywhere, fluttering gaily from the mast-heads of homes, clubs, banks and other commercial houses, while mercantile and naval ships in harbour were dressed from "battleship row," off the Bund, to vessels at Woosung.

FEELING OF SECURITY IN EUROPE

How Germany Can Help

London May 7.

Sympathy for Germany's attitude respecting armament and approval of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's recent declaration of policy, were shown by several speakers in the debate on foreign affairs in the House of Lords to-day.

Lord Stanhope recalled the declaration of the Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, last week, that Germany could re-establish the feeling of security in Europe by acts, but not by words.

He said the Government fervently hoped that Chancellor Hitler's promised statement on foreign policy next week would be a prelude to such constructive action on Germany's part as is expected in view of Hitler's frequently proclaimed desire for peace.

In regard to the suggestion that the Government should reconstitute the Disarmament Conference, Lord Stanhope said it seemed impossible at present for Britain to submit figures for land forces which Europe would be likely to agree to.

"If Hitler could give us figures, well and good. Let Germany submit definite proposals and let us see if we could get plans for an air pact on the lines of our proposals."

SUDDEN AIR RAID IN GERMANY

City Goes "Dead" For Half An Hour

Koenigsberg, May 8.

The whole city went dead for half an hour to-day when the authorities staged a sudden air raid over the East Prussian capital. Sirens shrieked a warning: the police ordered pedestrians off the streets, and traffic stopped.

Troops drilled in gas-proof suits performed exercises, bombing planes roared overhead; eventually the sirens gave the "all clear" signal to the obedient public who were released, and the city came to life dramatically as it went dead.

The British Government had drafted an air pact for its own information and he had no doubt France and Italy had done the same, he said.

"Let us communicate them to each other and let us get one from Germany and see if Germany can submit practical proposals that will enable us to resume negotiations."

Germany did not like the idea of an Eastern Locarno pact, Lord Stanhope said, and some of the other international arrangements were unwelcome to Berlin. Let Germany, in that case, propose other arrangements and see if the nations cannot get agreement upon them, he suggested.

It mattered little from whom the proposals came, providing they were concrete and practical and in good faith.

With regard to Germany's plans for naval construction, Lord Stanhope said the British Government was proposing to negotiate with Berlin, but pointed out that it would have to submit any proposals by any nation to the co-signatories of the London and Washington Treaties.

WISHES OF THE DOMINIONS

System Of Collective Security

London, May 8.

Political correspondents in this morning's papers state that while yesterday discussions between the Cabinet and Dominion Premiers were informal and the views expressed would not be published in the form of a resolution, there appears to be no doubt that the Dominions favour a system of collective security for maintaining peace in Europe. They agree that Germany should be treated as an equal, but at the same time Chancellor Hitler should show that faith can be placed in Germany's words and actions.

They declare that the most important question raised was consultation with the Dominions respecting British foreign policy and commitments in Europe.

The "News Chronicle" says that a plan may be agreed to enabling British representatives at European conferences to take swift decisions on behalf of the Empire without awaiting the consent of individual Dominions, the latter, however, retaining the right of ratifying or refusing to ratify such decisions, and asserts that the British Government is at present handicapped at European conferences by having to await lengthy consultations with the Dominions before coming to any decisions.

London, May 8.

As a protest against the conditions which permitted the present acute shortage of tin on the London market, brokers to-day withdrew en masse from the second tin session on the London Metal Exchange, leaving the chairman alone in the ring.

The brokers, in an interview with Reuters, stated that the action was taken in order to awaken the International Tin Committee to the present situation.

It is understood that one broker who was short of tin for a few days attempted unsuccessfully to borrow tin from the market and then applied to a large holder, also unsuccessfully, whereupon the brokers urged him to commit a technical default in order to show up the position. A large holder later lent the broker the tin, but brokers nevertheless are determined to carry out the protest.

London, May 8.

In the House of Commons to-day, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald repudiated the "News Chronicle" story cables this morning. He denied that any change in the existing position had been discussed or contemplated as regards Dominion responsibility and obligations respecting foreign policy. The Prime Minister said that the Government of the United Kingdom adhered firmly to the principles governing the system of consultation which was agreed to at successive Imperial conferences.

London, May 8.

As a protest against the conditions which permitted the present acute shortage of tin on the London market, brokers to-day withdrew en masse from the second tin session on the London Metal Exchange, leaving the chairman alone in the ring.

The brokers, in an interview with Reuters, stated that the action was taken in order to awaken the International Tin Committee to the present situation.

It is understood that one broker who was short of tin for a few days attempted unsuccessfully to borrow tin from the market and then applied to a large holder, also unsuccessfully, whereupon the brokers urged him to commit a technical default in order to show up the position. A large holder later lent the broker the tin, but brokers nevertheless are determined to carry out the protest.

THE AUSTRIAN QUESTION

Discussion In Rome

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1914. Received, May 8, 4.30 p.m.)

Budapest, May 8.

At Mussolini's special request the Austrian question will be discussed at his forthcoming negotiations in Rome with the French Air Minister on final test of the Franco-Italian mutual assistance pact.

The paper claims authority in stating that Mussolini insists that in this pact Italy's air frontier shall be declared to be along a line from Passau, Salzburg and Kufstein, the first of the towns being in Germany while the other two are situated in Austrian territory.

The Hungarian paper points out that if France accedes to the Italian wishes it would mean that the French Air Force will have to take joint action with the Italian Air Force against any country attacking it.

ORDER TO RELEASE MR. PARSONS

Peiping, May 8.

The runners up position of the Senior League was decided by the solitary goal scored by Police in the first few minutes of second half in their last match of the league against E. Lanes, yesterday.

Police thoroughly deserved their win. The game was played at a fast rate with the ball swinging from end to end. The soldiers' goal had several narrow shaves in the first half when Oxford first saved a stinger from Stevens and then Moss, receiving from Greene, just shot over with a "first timer."

Both sets of defence came out of the scrapping test with flying colours, but chief honours went to Gough who was head and shoulders above the rest.

Blackburn and Pile combined well, covering their wing halves to perfection. Their anticipation and clearances were perfect. Steele and Swaine were also in the picture but received very little support from their wing halves who were inclined to be weak under pressure.

THE SECOND HALF

Police forwards went direct for goal, whereas the soldiers dilly-dallied too much when placed in a favourable position.

In the second half the soldiers had the greater share of play and in one of their attacks Tulley's centre, just missed by inches with McHardy well beaten.

Play was exciting and thrilling towards the closing minutes. Although Police did more of the attacking they found Steele and Swaine on form and this pair of backs literally stood between the Police and goal.

The teams: Police: McHardy; Blackburn and Pile (C.); Brooks, Gough and Britain; Pile (T.); Hong, Moss, Stevens, Greene.

E. Lanes: Oxford; Swaine and Steele; Smith, Lawton and Norton; Mather, Horner, Sandford, Riding and Tulley.

ATHLETIC DEFEATED

Chinese Athletic were defeated by the Royal Welch Fusiliers on the Navy Ground at Causeway Bay by 3 goals to 2.

The game was keenly fought throughout. As an indication, the score at the interval was two all, and the Chinese, who had more of the play were rather unlucky to lose.

With about only fifteen minutes to play, the losers conceded a penalty as the result of which the soldiers took the lead. Although they were awarded this "500" kick in return about five minutes before time the Chinese could not manage to register the "equaliser."

The teams were:—China Athletic: Cheung Mun Wing; Mok Chiu Hon, Lo Hon Cheung; Ng Tak Wing, Lai Kwok Chiu, Lo Wai Kuen; Ho Kar Keung, Aw Ping Ming, Yeung Kan Ho, Pang King Yue.

Fusiliers: Rowlands; Wheeler, Keating; Grindley, Keeghan, Taylor; Hughes, Harrison, Dennis, Roberts, Talbot.

S. CHINA "B" v. RECREO

The game at the Caroline Hill was witnessed by a big crowd but the game was marred by too many fouls while the referee had to warn the players on several occasions.

Lai Shiu Wing opened the scoring for the Chinese in the first half. Wong Wa Kai, the Chinese goalie, was at his best and he saved several dangerous goals which looked like "winners."

After the interval the game was faster with Recreo doing most of the attacking. Continued pressure was brought on by the forwards and in one of these, from a pass by Alves, B. Gosano rushed through to give Recreo the equaliser.

End to end play was the order for a time and S. China returning of the attack gave the Portuguese a "scrumbling" time, but A. V. Gosano and Bowen were equal to the occasion and repulsed the attacks with masterly precision.

The teams were:—Recreo: E. Morgan; A. V. Gosano, Bowen; A. Silva Neto, Balcao, V. Marques; A. Aquino, Castilho, B. Gosano, Gomes and Alves.

THE END OF TIN RESTRICTION

China Never A Partner

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, April 18.

The resignation of Mr. John Howson from the board of the Anglo-Oriental Mining Corporation and the London Tin Corporation can hardly fail to have an important effect on the tin regulation scheme.

The scheme, of which Mr. Howson was the parent and chief supporter, came into force in March, 1931. It was an agreement between the Governments of Malaya, Nigeria, Bolivia and the Netherlands East Indies, the four great producers.

Later other tin-producing countries, including Siam, French Indo-China, the Belgian Congo and Portugal, were brought into the scheme on a tonnage basis, which was not restriction in the original sense and which was detrimental to the interests of the original participating countries.

China has never been a partner in the scheme.

Malaya's Grievance

From the first Malayan tin producers were opposed to the scheme. They held that, as now operated, it bears a close analogy to the disastrous Stevenson rubber restriction scheme in that its chief effect has been to stimulate production in the non-participating countries, notably China. Already the world production of the original participating countries has declined nearly 20 per cent.

Moreover, as the cheapest and largest in producer, well able to supply our needs at a lower price than the present, Malaya has a grievance against the Colonial Office, which it maintains, has insufficiently considered Malayan interests.

With the resignation of Mr. Howson those who oppose the present scheme will feel encouraged to renew their opposition. The writer predicts that the voice of Malaya will now be heard for the total removal of restriction.

The present scheme operates until the end of 1936. It will be reviewed again by the Tin Committee in June of this year.

RETURNING TO DUTY

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Apr. 18.

When he rejoins the 16th Lancers at York, the Duke of Gloucester will be resuming his ordinary military duties.

The 16th Lancers is one of the most famous cavalry regiments in the Army. It was originally a light cavalry regiment, and was known as the 16th Light Dragoons when it was first raised in 1759.

The Duke of Gloucester's transference from one crack regiment—the 10th Hussars—to another is a compliment to his new unit.

Apart from his cousin, the young Earl of Macduff, he is the only serving soldier in the Royal family. The Duke of Connaught and Prince Arthur of Connaught can, however, both look back on a career as professional soldiers. Prince Arthur is now Colonel-in-Chief of the Scots Greys, the regiment in which he once served.

GOOD FOOTBALL COME-BACK

Discard Now Dashing Leader

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, April 18.

When one team in a game scores five goals and the other lot gets only two the limelight usually switches over to the winners. That was not altogether the case at Preston last Saturday when the North End, after looking like dropping a point, scored three goals in five minutes (per Jimmy Maxwell) and won by the score mentioned.

The limelight in this game picked out Billy Robson, the Stoke City centre-forward, whose two goals were the first he has scored for his club in Football League games. The goals were good ones. The scorer showed speed, resource and initiative during the game, but the great thing about this display was that the player was "making a come-back."

Billy, you see, had to give up football when a Huddersfield Town player, because of rheumatism, GIVEN UP

He went to the Town from Walker Celtic as a player full of promise. That promise looked likely to materialise when illness laid him low. Everything that could be done for him was done. Huddersfield Town gave their players the best. But after months of treatment the Leeds Road club were forced to the decision that Billy wasn't going to be of much use to them as a footballer and he was allowed to go home to the north-east.

Something happened up there that doctors and drugs could not achieve in Huddersfield. Billy started playing for Usworth Colliery. Last season he was playing so well that Stoke and other clubs started to take an interest. The Potters had been pipped on the post when Billy was with Walker Celtic.

Somebody, of course, had to tell the Potters that the player had been so full of rheumatism that he had to chuck it at Huddersfield. Stoke wondered. This fellow's legs, they thought, look anything like the limbs of a rheumatic. They moved too well. So Stoke did some approach work.

They fixed things with Usworth Colliery. Then they took the player to a specialist for examination. Blood tests were made and the report was so completely reassuring that the Potters took a chance and signed the player.

TWO GOOD GOALS

And last Saturday, in his second League game for the club this season, his former "rheumatic wreck" scored two of the finest goals you could wish to see.

First he picked up a pass on the right and put—a crisply hit, low short pass—Harry Holdcroft, the Preston goalkeeper. Later on he picked up the ball on the left, and passed two Preston defenders as if they were standing still.

His shot again beat the goalkeeper but hit the foot of the far away post. Billy caught the rebound and though in a crowd of players he put the ball safely in the back of the net.

There was nothing faintly suggestive of rheumatism in this display. Billy has come back after suffering and disappointment. If he keeps this up opposing goalkeepers may begin to suffer—from backache.

There is some fun in being a schoolboy nowadays. Many an "old boy" must have wished that he could shed his adjective when he read recently of the return of a party of public school boys from a visit to the West Indies. Antigua, Grenada, Barbados, Jamaica, the pitch late in Trinidad, a three days' journey through the bush in British Guiana to "the highest waterfall in the world"—"Here's richness," as a notorious schoolmaster once remarked with much less justification. It is a thrilling example of the highly educative work which is being done by the School Empire-Tour Committee. The boys who come back from such journeys can never grow up to be "Little Englanders" but are surely destined to become "imperialists" in the best sense of that much abused and often misused word.

They can hardly help feeling (in the unexpected company of M. Stalin, according to a recent report from Moscow) how great an influence and how heavy a responsibility belong to that little patch of the earth's surface which reddens the map off the north-west coast of Europe. "Seeing the world" nowadays is a very different thing from what it was when it implied little more than escaping from the restraints of school and university and becoming a man about town or something in the City. In these days of organized and well-advised cruises, most people have something to say about the northern capitals, the coasts of the Mediterranean, the Isles of Greece, Morocco, Madeira, or the West Indies. The world is shrinking under our eyes when, not as a "tour de force," but as an ordinary everyday affair, anyone who cares to do so can breakfast in London and the tea in Budapest.

which the people of this country are felt by other nations to be peculiarly prone. There is nothing like personal contact as a dispeller of misunderstanding and a cure for defective appreciation. It has shown its usefulness on the plane of diplomatic exchanges again and again in recent years. Of special value is it to create in the young, as the School Empire-Tour Committee so pleasantly aims at doing, that habit of looking beyond one's self and one's own immediate surroundings which is sure to lead to a better perspective of world affairs in mature life. It needs an effort on the part of the untravelled man of middle age to dig himself out of his comfortable groove and to ranging strange seas and unfamiliar lands. But the boy who has tasted such experiences will with difficulty be restrained from them when he grows up. He is a ready-made Ulysses, for whom all experience is an arch wherethor'

That physical projection of one's self has its counterpart on the moral side. It is an old secret that the highest satisfaction comes from looking away from the self which hungers for fulfillment. The man is notoriously better, and not worse, who succeeds in turning his morbidly microscopic and painfully magnifying inner eye outward upon the thoughts and feelings, the needs and aspirations, the joys and sorrows of the world about him. In so expanding and expanding himself he becomes the richer and not the poorer. His faculty of understanding and sympathy will flourish miraculously with use, and will defy that process of ageing and exhaustion to which in the end the most splendid physical powers must succumb. It is no new paradox that in such lavishing of himself a man finds a truer and higher good.

SPANISH CABINET

Increase of Catholic Party Influence

Madrid, May 7. Gil Robles, leader of the powerful Catholic peoples party and war Minister in the new Lerroux Cabinet has been appointed acting Premier whereby the Catholic party's predominating influence in the new Government is still further accentuated.

The Cabinet held its first meeting on Tuesday when it was decided to introduce a budget of a new electoral reform bill to Parliament with the request to pass them with all possible speed in view of their urgency.

The new Finance Minister, Chapaprieta stated to pressmen that the Government were advocating a policy of financial retrenchment and cheaper money, but with certain limits excluding all danger of inflation. He added that the reduction of interest rates formed one of the chief points of his programme which it is hoped will be carried out in close co-operation with the Ministry of Agriculture and Public Works and which aims at effecting an immediate stimulation of the country's economic life.

Handicrafts, consisting of an American log hut, a miniature pagoda, an Indian tent, a relief map of Hong Kong, etc. by the Scouts, and beautiful pillows and dolls, etc. by the Guides, were also put on exhibition and these attracted considerable attention and admiration from the spectators.

Folk dance, singing, skipping, and Chinese acrobatics, etc. were also presented by the Guides.

The display was brought to a spectacular finale when several scouts and guides carrying the words "God Save the King" stood on the bridge built by the selected scouts in the middle of the field, while the National Anthem was being played.

THE DAY PROCESSION

The Chinese procession continued yesterday and interest was not in anyway diminished. On the other hand the crowds seemed to have increased and though it was the third day that they had paraded the streets the people taking part in the procession seemed as fresh and lively as ever.

The length of the procession necessitated several stoppages at different points of the route in order that traffic may be as little traction wherever it went.

As usual the three dragons caused the most interest with the Silver one being the centre of attraction where ever it went.

The many tableaux spoke volumes for Chinese craftsmanship and they were so cleverly done that the people responsible deserve the highest praise.

The lion head carriers with their acrobatic feats in no small manner demonstrated their versatility while some of their antics were funny to the extreme.

THE DRAGONS PERFORM

Starting shortly after 11 a.m. from Belcher's Street, the procession wended its way along the tramlines to the To Yuen Restaurant and then along Connaught Road West to Wing Lok Wharf. From Queen's Street to Queen's Road the procession found its way to the Chinese Recreation Ground where during a short halt the "dragons" performed to the delight of the thousands present. From Hollywood Road another stop was made near the Central Police Station where once again "the dragons" went up to the compound and there did a few turns to (as one of the participants said) "keep the devil and crime away."

Continuing its way the procession went down by Ice House Street and by about 1 p.m. the Cricket Ground was reached.

All along the route spectators lined four or five deep. Every verandah was crowded and in some places enterprising salesmen went so far as to hire out spaces and chairs to those who were unlucky enough not to be able to obtain a good vantage point.

The procession, according to the Chinese, would after its third appearance, drive off all evil and they predict that a new era is in store for Hong Kong. We trust this would be forthcoming.

LANTERN PROCESSION

The second night of the Lantern Procession again drew large crowds of spectators, last night, who lined up the streets long before the Procession or as scheduled to pass.

The illuminated dragon was the main feature of the night followed by hundreds of fish lanterns some of which measured about 30 feet in length, and requiring two or three bearers. Credit must be given to the fine craftsmanship of the people who made the lanterns and also to the men who handled them so effectively.

There were birds of different sizes and species while there were beautiful lanterns representing Chinese fruits, curios, and flowers.

The procession took a different route to yesterday which started from Catchick Street turns to the Bund; from the Bund to Des Voeux Road West; from Des Voeux Road West to Western Street; from Western Street to Queen's Road; from Queen's Road to Wellington Street; from Wellington Street to d'Aguilar Street; from d'Aguilar Street to Queen's Road passing Gap Road; from Gap Road to Leighton Hill Road; from Leighton Hill Road to Percival Street; from Percival Street to Hennessy Road; from Hennessy Road to Arsenal Street; from Arsenal Street to Queen's Road; from Queen's Road to Cricket Ground along Murray Road; from Murray Road to Connaught Road up to the Sun Company; from the Sun Company passes through Wing Lok Street; from Wing Lok Street to Connaught Road and along the tramway to Catchick Street (the ending point). "Always Tired?"
"YOU must strengthen your nerves
with SANATOGEN"

"Revitalize your nerves by taking Sanatogen." That is what your doctor will advise you, when listlessness, lack of appetite, or fretful sleep are robbing you of your health and joy of life.

For physicians know that all these complaints have their roots in one and the same cause: weakness of the nerves. And it is only by strengthening your nerves, that you can regain your former health and vitality.

Strengthen your nerves with Sanatogen—the true tonic-food. Sanatogen contains the very elements that build bodily health and vital strength—phosphorus and proteid. Sanatogen will make you feel stronger, healthier and consequently happier—even after a short course.

"I never hesitate to recommend Sanatogen to my patients in case of nervous exhaustion, and it gives very beneficial results. I do not obtain such results with the usual tonics."

writes a well-known English physician.

Over 25,000 physicians have given Sanatogen similar enthusiastic recommendations, because Sanatogen must do good. Start taking it to-day, then you will soon enjoy once again the feeling of radiant vitality and strength, that makes life worth living.

A CULTURAL CENTRE

The Future Of Shanghai

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Shanghai, April 28. Speaking on the subject of "The Commercial City of Shanghai as a Cultural Centre", Dr. Kiang Kang-Hu, noted Chinese scholar and former Professor of Chinese in McGill University, Canada, told members of the Rotary Club yesterday at their weekly luncheon meeting at the Metropole Hotel, that Shanghai more than ever before is in a position to develop into one of the world's leading cultural centres.

Shanghai was an insignificant city 50 years ago, Dr. Kiang said. But since it was opened to trade, it has become one of the world's leading commercial cities. A business man's life, however, consists only of continual rush and hurry; his whole life is concerned only in making money, spending it on making more money. Everything he does is reckoned in terms of dollars and cents, including his recreation and pleasure. "Now, why not make Shanghai a cultural centre?" asked Dr. Kiang. "The city has enough money. Men should have time and leisure to enjoy it."

TURNING POINT

For several reasons Shanghai has reached this turning point, Dr. Kiang said. Its residents, both Chinese and foreigners, have made money and are now more interested in culture. Four obvious factors have contributed toward this change: (1) the improvement of communications; (2) the fact that many Chinese and foreigners have come to Shanghai to make the city their permanent home; (3) the orientation of world psychology to the social sciences; and (4) direct contact between Chinese and foreigners promoting better understanding.

All these factors, Dr. Kiang remarked, have brought about better mutual understanding of culture. Thus one should try one's best to make this city the cultural centre of China as regard both Chinese and foreign cultural relations. "Conditions have changed," said Dr. Kiang, "and even from the business point of view, competitors are no longer mere profiteers. We must carry the idealism of culture into realism."

STATE-CONTROLLED INDUSTRY URGED

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Shanghai, April 28. Control of Chinese industries in coping with foreign competition is urged by the Shanghai City Chamber of Commerce in two communications sent yesterday to the Executive Yuan and the Ministry of Industry respectively.

The acute business depression throughout the country is partly due to large-scale dumping of foreign products and partly to the lack of industrial organization in this country, the message points out.

Instead of organizing themselves for coping with the unfair competition of foreign merchants, many Chinese industries are engaging in cut-throat competition among themselves. Prices are often reduced below cost. Thus products of inferior quality are manufactured, with a view to securing temporary profits.

Though some efforts have been made towards industrial organization, they have however, often come to naught before any appreciable results were achieved. Because of this lack of rationalized control, factories are often established one after another for the manufacture of similar products with the result that, not only are needs of the country overlooked, but business failures are frequently caused through over-production.

With a view to amelioration of this state of affairs, the Chamber proposed that the Chinese Government should exercise control over native industries. Attached to the communications were a set of 16 draft regulations governing industrial control recommended by the Executive Yuan and the Ministry of Industry.

MONUMENT TO PIONEER

Hamburg Ceremony

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

London, May 7. The motion tabled by Lord Dickinson in the House of Lords on Tuesday proposes that the House express its regret at the League Council's resolution of April 18, condemning Germany's rearmament as being calculated to aggravate the differences of opinion between nations at the moment when nothing should be left undone to bring the European States together on the basis of friendly co-operation.

The motion, moreover, demands that the British Government jointly with other Powers, should resume negotiations with Germany on a basis acceptable to the German people and assuring lasting peace.

In support of his motion, Lord Dickinson stressed that the return to pre-war atmosphere would certainly lead to conflicts and for this reason it was very unwise to accuse Germany of infringing treaties without giving her the opportunity to defend herself. At the present juncture it was of the utmost importance to consider the march of events without the slightest bias and to preserve justice.

Peace could not be maintained if Europe were the spirit of two camps consisting of Germany on the one side and the allies on the other, and it was time to cease our to reach an accord on the basis of co-operation.

"It is in our best interests," concluded Lord Dickinson, "that Germany should take its rightful place amongst nations of the world again but we must be prepared to make a clean slate."

In the following debate, Lord Morrison declared it was not too late to prevent Germany's isolation which must lead to a new world war. "I am convinced," he stated, "there is not a single person in Germany who wants to pick a quarrel with England."

The opposite standpoint was taken by Lord Cecil who, in contrast to the previous speakers, launched an attack against Germany. At a late hour on Tuesday night the debate was still in progress. —Transocean Kuo Min.

STATE GIFT TO GERMAN MUSEUM

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Munich, May 7. On the occasion of the opening of the new German Museum for Natural History, and Engineering" here on Tuesday, the Minister of Education, Rust announced that the German Government, as an expression of its thanks to the men responsible for the great work represented by the German museum and as evidence of its desire to support it, had decided to put in two million marks at the disposal of the museum authorities.

The primary purpose of this grant, continued the speaker, was for enabling more representative sections to be devoted to the automobile industry and aviation. At the conclusion of the ceremony, the managing board of the museum telegraphed Hitler, thanking him in the warmest terms for his generous gift. —Transocean Kuo Min.

THE RED ARMY

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Moscow, May 7. A glowing tribute was paid to the Red Army by the Chairman of the Central Executive Committee, Kalinin, in a speech delivered on the occasion of the final examinations of the military academy here. Kalinin stressed that the Red Army was growing and increasing in efficiency every year, even the enemies of the Soviet regime having gradually recognised the tremendous power represented by the Soviet Union's fighting forces.

Efforts to further develop this power should therefore never cease and all available energies as well as the wealth of scientific experience at the nation's disposal should be applied to this purpose. Kalinin said in conclusion "To be an engineer in the Red Army means to co-operate in the organisation of the army whose task it is to defend and protect the workers of the whole world." —Transocean Kuo Min.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S BROADCAST

Budget Explained: The Income-Tax Reliefs

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, April 18. Mr. Chamberlain broadcast a speech on his Budget from London.

Having explained how he arrived at a surplus of just over £11,000,000 to be disposed of in the current year, Mr. Chamberlain said:—

I am proposing to deal with this surplus on the same principle as that which I laid down last year—namely, that those classes which suffered most severely in 1930 should be the first to be relieved when relief was possible. Last year I was able to give the first instalment of this relief. I have not got enough to complete it this year, but I can carry it further, and I am making an effort to direct it to those whose needs are most pressing. For this reason I am unable to do anything now to reduce the extra 10 per cent, which was added to the surtax in 1931, because I want to concentrate such relief as I can afford on the small income-tax payer.

Last year I reduced the standard rate of income-tax from 5s. to 4s. 6d., because I believed that that reduction would have the greatest effect in stimulating trade and employment, and I think the results of the year have borne out my expectations, but I knew then that the small income-tax payer would not get very much direct benefit from the reduction, and I want him to have his turn now. At the present time the taxpayer is entitled to deduct from his present income certain allowances, an allowance if his income is earned, a personal allowance, larger for a married man than for a single person, and other allowances for children. What is left is called his taxable income, and the first £175 of this taxable income is charged only at half rate, that is at 2s. 3d. at the present time.

HELPING THE SMALL MAN

My first proposal is that, instead of the first £175 being charged at 2s. 3d., the first £135 shall be charged at 1s. 6d. Now there are 2,250,000 taxpayers whose taxable income is below £135, and they will all get a reduction in their tax of 8d. in the pound. Another 200,000 people have taxable incomes between £135 and £175, and they, too will get a relief gradually decreasing, until at £175 it practically stops. My next proposal is to increase the marriage allowance by £20, from £150 to £170. Married people have to carry greater responsibilities than unmarried, and this marriage allowance was rather severely cut in 1931. I am very glad to restore some of that cut. Lastly I am giving a further relief to married couples with families. The allowances for children are now £50 for the first child and £40 for each subsequent child. I am now proposing to make the allowance £50 for every child, however many there are.

One more very small change is intended to help the taxpayer who has not more than £125 of total income but who draws it wholly or partly from investments. Some in this class have been hit pretty hard by the conversion operations, and I propose, in future, to exempt all incomes up to £125 no matter how they are derived. Listeners who are income-tax payers will be able to work out how they will be affected by these changes if they read my proposals in the papers to-morrow. But I will give you two illustrations by way of example. A married taxpayer with three children and an earned income of £500 a year at present pays in income-tax £13 10s. In future, under my proposals, he will pay only £6. A married taxpayer with two children and a total earned income of £400 a year at present pays £9. In future he will only pay £3 15s.

THE CUTS RESTORED

That concludes the changes I am proposing in income-tax, and now I come to the entertainments tax. The increases that were made in this tax in 1931 have borne very hardly on the cheaper seats and have added greatly to the difficulties of the entertainers conducted by living performers. I want to give them both some help, and I propose to abolish the duty on all admission payments up to 6d. and to reduce the duty on admission payments over 6d. in the theatres, music-halls, and other places where there are living performers. This change will come into operation on July 1. Last of all, I propose to restore from the same date the other half of the cuts in salaries and wages which I was able to give back last year. These reliefs have now used up my available surplus, and so that finishes my account of this Budget. It may be called a poor man's Budget, for it contains no relief for the wealthy. But they will remember that they benefited last year by the reduction in the income-tax, and I am sure they will be delighted to think that the small taxpayers, who have so gallantly done their part in contributing to the nation's need in a time of crisis, should share in our returning prosperity. For prosperity is indeed coming back, and this afternoon I expressed the opinion that, broadly speaking, it might be said that we have already recovered 80 per cent. of it.

I am not forgetting the 2,000,000 still on the register of the unemployed or those areas in which unemployment seems to have concentrated itself so obstinately and so long. To bring you, who live there, back into the sunshine so that you may again play your part in the normal life of the nation, is the hardest task that lies before us. It will not be achieved in a day or a month, but there are many willing hearts and hands working at the problem and I am convinced that by degrees we shall master it.

MOTION IN LORDS

League Censure Of Germany

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Hamburg, May 7. The monument to the German Colonial pioneer, Major Hans Dominik was unveiled on Tuesday in the garden of the Hamburg University. Dominik, who died of tropical disease on board an African liner exactly twenty five years ago, was one of the leading German explorers in Central Africa, having taken part in more than twenty expeditions, chiefly to the former German Cameroons.

The monument which has now been unveiled has already history of its own, it having been completed by the German sculptor Moebius before the war, to be erected in the Cameroons. It was shipped to Yaounde in 1914 but the outbreak of the war prevented the original plan from being carried out, the monument remaining in a store in Yaounde until the German Colonial Society

BRITAIN AND LOCARNO

Treaty Obligations

London, May 7. In the House of Commons today, asked whether, in the event of any alteration by Germany in the demilitarised zone under the Treaty of Versailles, it was to be understood that Britain would immediately go to the assistance of France, with the whole of its armed forces, under the Treaty of Locarno, Sir John Simon said the circumstances in which the British guarantee under the Treaty of Locarno would operate were specified in that Treaty itself.

As stated in the Anglo-Italian declaration embodied in the resolution of the Stresa Conference, the British Government stand by all their obligations under the Treaty of Locarno, and intend, should the need arise, faithfully to fulfil them.

The Prime Minister, replying to a Parliamentary question, said the Government were very anxious to put the House and the country in possession of all available information with regard to Germany's air development. This could not, however, be conveniently done in the form of a White Paper. As full a statement as possible would be made early in the forthcoming debate.

INFORMAL TALK

A further informal discussion on the international situation between British Commonwealth Premiers, the Prime Minister and United Kingdom Ministers took place at 10 Downing Street to-day.

In addition to those who took part in the discussion on the last occasion, Mr. Forbes, Prime Minister of New Zealand, was present. There were also present the Dominions High Commissioners.

A general interchange of views with regard to the whole international situation took place. On the British side there were present the Prime Minister, Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Thomas, Sir John Simon and Sir Philip Cunliffe.

Further discussions will take place later. The Prime Minister of Canada, Mr. Bennett, returns to Ottawa on Friday. —British Wire.

AMERICA AND THE LEAGUE

Entry Question Raised

Washington, May 7. The question of America's entry into the League of Nations has been revived by a resolution introduced into the Senate today by Senator Pope. The resolution authorises the United States to accept membership on certain conditions, chief of which is that the provisions of the Covenant regarding co-operation to prevent war should not compel the United States to use armed force.

The second reservation which the resolution insists upon is that America should be left to make up her own mind about what action to take in the event of violation of the peace treaties.

Senator Pope, in his introductory address, said that mere negative action would never suffice to prevent war. "The world," he said, "won't bring peace and it in our laps. We must conquer it by constructive effort. Prevention of war is far more important than trying to stay out of it once it has started."

The Bill may not be debated openly in the present Congress, as Senator Pope has not requested immediate action, but its controversial nature will ensure its discussion throughout the country. —Reuter.
